They Want It; They Get It
Coolidge's 2 Elephants
California's Vote
An Expensive Grave

—By Arthur Brisbane—

Copyright, 1928, by Star Co.

WHAT BIG MEN WANT they GET. In New York they wanted an increased subway fare, regardless of a hard and fast contract with the city that put tens of millions into the enterprise.

What big gentlemen WANTED they have GOT, by order of the United States Court.

Officials will weep and go through various motions. But the little fish will pay.

"Concentration is the secret of strength," said Emerson. The big fellows concentrate in the right direction.

President Coolidge has contemplated, with a friendly eye, Mr. Ringling's sea elephant, monster of the deep, that eats 400 pounds of mackerel at one meal, and has nothing to do with politics.

Some cling to the idea that in spite of not choosing, the President will be lured from his elephant, that lives on land and swallows campaign contributions as readily as the sea elephant swallows fresh mackerel.

Governor Smith wins in California, gathering 26 more votes, and probably will be nominated at Houston on the first ballot.

Secretary Hoover, Republican, got 477,000 California votes, about all there were; Smith, 114,961; Reed, 48,814; Walsh, 37,222.

Secretary Hoover's friends say even a Wall Street Republican should notice those figures.

Governor Smith's opponents say many California Republicans registered as Democrats and voted for him. That's just what the Governor expected.

A small plot, corner of Wall street and Broadway, across from Trinity Church, sells for $7,000,000, $576 a square foot. At that rate a grave 10 feet long, four feet wide, would cost $23,040.

Many a man has paid more than that to be buried, financially, in that neighborhood.

Ask the ghosts that squeak and gibber at the back door of the Stock Exchange when the clock strikes twelve above Trinity's graves. And don't gamble.

In Europe, here and there, May Day celebrations ended in violence. In America, in New York and elsewhere, many police were ready for hostile May Day celebrators. But there weren't any. Small crowds attended radical meetings. Nobody showed any deep desire to "throw off his chains" by force and violence.

The wise Bolshevist said it "You can't do much in a country that owns 24,000,000 automobiles."

Moscow Bolshevism showed a real May Day demonstration Following the Red, army, well trained and armed, there marched a million men and women, also armed, with guns and bayonets. Armored tanks, armored cars, machine guns, cavalry, a tremendous fighting power, such as the czars never saw, has been developed by the revolution. More than 15,000,000 in the fighting force of Russia.

Dr. Butler, head of Columbia University, says Aristotle knew all we know about government

'L' CONTROL KILLED

Running suddenly amuck, the House today killed every bit of Elevated legislation before it, thereby wasting months of debate and discussion.

As the climax to a two days' debate, the House killed the Shattuck bill, calling for a 20-year extension of public control, by a voice vote.

The so-called Gilman bill, providing a 16-year extension of public control, was slain by a roll call vote of 67 to 125, and the Twohig bill, for straight public ownership, went down by a vote of 74 to 119.

BRAVES GET KELLY AND RHEM IN 4-SIDED DEAL

By W. S. FARNSWORTH

New York, May 3—Before midnight it is expected that—

Vic Aldridge, secured from the Pirates by the Giants, who never reported to the McGraw men because he could not agree on terms offered by President Charles Stoneham, will be the property of the Cincinnati Reds, and—

Pete Donahue, who held the Reds up for a bigger salary than the owners wanted to give him, will be a Giant, and—

George Kelly, first baseman of the Reds, will be instructed to report to the Boston Braves, and—

Flint Rhem, young St. Louis Cardinal twirler, will be a teammate of Kelly's in the Hub.

This writer learned of these deals from a man closely connected with the Giants, who offered to buy us our first straw skimmer of the coming season if they did not go through before the clock bangs forth its next twelve.

McGraw has soured on Aldridge, and the same goes for Donahue with

MRS. WHITNEY TELLS OF DRINKING PARTIES

WENT DOWN QUART BY QUART

Lawsuit, N. Y., May —The trial of the Whitney divorce suits bubbled over a bottomless flow of rum, gin and whiskey, as the thirst of evidence introduced here today in an effort to show that Mrs. Frances Clark Whitney, Boston society woman, consumed much liquor.

The evidence was a letter purporting to have been written by Mrs. Whitney on July 19, 1920, while she was engaged to marry Harold O. Whitney.

The missive was directed to Whitney, then abroad. In it appeared the passage:

"I swear I haven't been sober since June 25. How we kept going is more than I can see."

Again quoted:

"I never put down so much liquor in all my life. The parties hummed and I am still going strong. We had three quarts of gin and two quarts of scotch. In this hot weather it gets you quickly."

Mrs. Whitney denied authorship of several paragraphs in the letter, but said it was written as a "bluff" to her husband.

"Charlie and I put away a quart of rum between us. I didn't

Parker Asks Mothers to Aid Safety Drive

We shudder and recoil from war, but what about the auto peril? Captain George A. Parker, registrar of motor vehicles says:

"Last year in the United States 25,000 persons were killed and 700,000 were injured by automobiles. About one-third were children. It is important that mothers of New England adopt strenuous methods to arouse public opinion and put in practice such preventive measures as will be sure to protect their children."—Editor.

By GEORGE A. PARKER.

I am tremendously interested in the Boston Evening American's campaign to call to the attention of the mothers of New England the need of safeguarding their children from dangers adherent to automobile traffic.

READING IS SENT HOME TO BED

Suffering acute pain which has prevented him from sleeping nights, Atty.-Gen. Arthur K. Reading was today withdrawn by his counsel from a fire of cross-examination before the legislative committee investigating his conduct.

The Attorney-General went immediately to a physician and then to his home, where he took to his bed.

The withdrawal, which caused a temporary halt in the proceedings, was against the wishes of Reading himself, who desired to continue.

Adjournment of the morning session was taken two hours early and at the start of the afternoon hearing defense counsel placed Joseph A. Lincoln, a new witness, upon the stand.

It was problematical when Reading would be recalled. He may resume Monday if he obtains a much-needed rest over the week-end.

"Sacro-iliac" is the medical term for the injury which Reading received to his back while cranking his automobile two weeks ago. Since then, despite a strapped back, he has been in almost continual pain.

The sudden breakdown of the hearing came as its climax was being reached, but not wholly without warning. Yesterday the attorney-general appeared greatly wearied; his eyes were closed during questioning by Herbert Parker, a prosecutor

INQUIRY IN DEATH OF RICH CHICOPEE WOMAN

Jackson, O., May 3 (INS)—Officials of Jackson County today were communicating with authorities at Chicopee, Mass., and Hampden County following the death of Miss Emma McCutcheon, 54, who died last Friday at Centerville, near here.

Her body was sent to the Massachusetts city but Saturday without the consent of county officials they reported today.

Miss McCutcheon left over $20,000, it is reported. An investigation was started, it was reported, when Miss McCutcheon's brother-in-law tried to buy a coffin from a Centerville undertaker, but did not want the body to be seen.

Legette had suggested to Daniels that he accept second place on an independent ticket. If Smith were nominated, with either Reed or Senator Borah as the independent presidential candidate.

Legette has agreed to have nothing to do with such a movement and announcing that he would support the nominee of the party.

Daniels added he hoped the Houston convention would make a clean cut declaration for prohibition.

REED DISAVOWS THREAT TO BOLT IF SMITH WINS

Washington, May 3 (AP)—Senator Reed of Missouri candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination today disavowed responsibility for the suggestion made by Wilbur Legette of California that an independent party be formed in the event of the nomination of Governor Smith of New York.

The Senator's statement was made in a telegram today to Josephus Daniels, former naval secretary, to whom Legette proposed the move.

Daniels replied to Legette, refusing to have anything to do with such a movement and announcing that he would support the nominee of the party.

Daniels added he hoped the Houston convention would make a clean cut declaration for prohibition.

in office; he rested his head upon his hand.

When the hearing opened today, he seemed somewhat refreshed, although he said he felt but little better. Answering the first question placed by Parker, he once again seemed sure of his ground, his voice was clear and strong.

Soon after he began to speak in a lower voice, his head drooped, he covered his eyes with his hands. At the conclusion of a short recess Starr Parsons, of his counsel, asked the committee to excuse Reading so that he might obtain proper physical rest. Permission was granted.

"I want to make it clear," Reading told the committee, "that the postponement is made at the request of counsel. I would personally like to go on and testify from early in the morning until late at night."

PARKER'S VOICE RINGS

Before his withdrawal, Reading was questioned at length by Parker with reference to the $25,000 which he received as retainer from the Decima Club. Again the former attorney-general resorted to lengthy questions, eloquently phrased and punctuated with "sirs" which seemed to possess the faculty of arousing Reading's ire. Again between the two many verbal tilts developed.

Once Reading objected to Parker's "ringing voice."

"You were keeping records of the honor of your office, weren't you?" Parker inquired once. And again: "Do you know, sir, in respect to any honorable contract, why any portion of it should be kept secret?" And still again: "Did you believe that keeping the contract from the people was an honorable act?"

Reading's testimony that Joseph and David Webster had said "they needed a lawyer to do what I had done" drew from Parker the caustic ble conditions at least until north of Sweden.

After circling Stockholm, the airship was steered to the westward, to Ampelviken, where lives the mother of the Finn Malgren, one of the expedition's scientists. Descending quite close to the earth the Italia dropped a message for her from her son.

Returning, the dirigible passed Djurgarden Park, where the Italian legation is located, and exchanged greeting with the Duke of Colonna, the Italian minister. The ship then flew away north.

Stolp, Germany, May 3—The dirigible Italia left Seddin hangars, near here, at 3:25 a. m. today on the second leg of its flight to the North Pole with King's Bay, Spitzbergen, as its destination.

Gen. Umberto Nobile, commander of the giant airship, stated before his departure that an intermediate landing might be made at Vadso, Norway, for refuelling, if weather conditions permitted.

Gen. Nobile decided upon starting this morning when he received word that the terrific storms over northern Norway which had prevented him from starting yesterday, had subsided.

Titina, the fox terrier mascot of the Italia, accompanied Nobile and his crew of sixteen on the flight. About 20 persons, including the Reichswehr who aided in getting the ship out of the hangar, witnessed the start.

With searchlights playing on it from the field, the ship ascended rapidly and was soon lost in the darkness. After a few moments, even the drone of its motors could not be heard.

Mme. Nobile and her daughter bade the general goodby affectionately just before he jumped into the gondola of the ship. They smiled bravely and seemed confident of the success of his venture. They will return to Italy at once.

Miss Donneley, who comes from Boston, took the names of 96 children last night as the first club members. Youngsters stopped a game of tag in strike headquarters to answer her catechism as to the meaning of the strike and to sing strike songs.

MIRACLE CURES DUMB GIRL AT MISSION CHURCH SHRINE

DESCRIBES HOW SPEECH CAME IN NOVENA

"A little child shall lead them."
—Isaiah 11:6.

An eight-year-old girl, who had been born dumb, walked from a pew in the Mission Church, Roxbury, and publicly, before the worshippers there, in sweet, clear voice, declared that a miracle of God had given her speech.

For the first six years of her life, the child had been without the power of speech. She had been born dumb. Then suddenly, two years ago, her tongue had been loosed, it was announced. Speech came, it was said, normal speech, like that of any child.

And there, in the church, the child kneeled at a shrine of the Virgin, and gave thanks to God that she could speak.

It was a dramatic scene, the more so because of the religious atmosphere of quietness and holiness. The church was crowded at the time, the parishioners having gathered for a novena, in preparation for the coming feast day of Our Lady of Perpetual Help, patroness of the church.

There were 2000 or more persons at the service, when Rev. Fr. Joseph A. Coughlin, C. S. S. R., began his sermon. After preaching on "Virgin Most Merciful," Fr. Coughlin moved to the shrine of the Patroness.

"Eight years ago there was born to a family, a baby daughter," he said. "Through the first six years of her life, she was without power of speech. Her parents felt keenly her affliction.

"Two years ago, her grandmother decided to engage in making a novena during nine successive weeks, in honor of the Blessed Mother of the Saviour. She came to this church.

"During that series of novenas, the grandmother one afternoon returned home with the little dumb girl. Without any warning of any kind, the little girl suddenly spoke. Clearly articulating her words, she said to her grandmother:

"'Isn't that a pretty church?'

"The family feared the speech was but a temporary thing, and so did not speak of it. They feared the child might again become dumb. Recently they spoke to us about it."

After the priest had prayed at the shrine, the little girl herself walked from a pew. She then spoke briefly, kneeled and prayed her lit the prayer of thanksgiving.

FULLER ASKS FIXED PAY FOR JUDGES

Recommending fixed salaries, Governor Alvan T. Fuller today returned to the House a bill which would increase the salaries of supreme, superior and land court judges.

He recommends that the salary of the chief justice of the Supreme Court be made $15,000, instead of "between $12,500 and $16,000" as provided in the bill. He also urged a fixed salary of $14,000 for the associate justices of that court.

He struck out entirely an increase of $2000 a year for land court judges, but he had no criticism of the increase from $10,500 to $12,000 which the bill gives the chief justice of the Superior Court, nor of the raise from $10,000 to $12,000 given the other Superior Court judges.

'CAN'T BELIEVE IN ANY MAN FOR LONG TIME,' WROTE MRS. WHITNEY

MOST OF DIARY NOTES SHE SAYS CAME FROM BOOKS

even have a skate on as I am going immune," the letter read.

"Were you drunk when you wrote that letter?" inquired Robert T. Bushnell, Whitney's counsel.

"No," answered Mrs. Whitney.

"Mrs. Whitney, isn't it a fact you led your husband into drinking parties?"

"No."

The letter closed with the admonition to Whitney "to have a good time and be prepared for a wild one when you return."

At the conclusion of its reading, the Boston society woman was accused of misconduct with Lawrence Higgins, Back Bay clubman and diplomat, asked permission to explain to the court the significance of the phrase. Upon it being granted, she said that Mrs. Whitney, Sr., wanted to break up her engagement to Harold and take her son on a tour of the world.

The elder Mrs. Whitney did not want her son to marry a girl without means, the witness said and warned him that Harold "would never be contented with a quiet little girl."

Mrs. Whitney then said she wrote the letter, bluffing, in order to obtain the reaction of her fiancee to such actions.

Q.—Wasn't it that Mrs. Whitney objected to her son marrying a girl who smoked and drank? A.—She did not know that I smoked or even took a drink.

Mrs. Whitney denied emphatically that before the trial opened she had threatened to "plaster Mrs. Whitney and her friends with mud."

Another letter, purporting to have been written after their marriage, by Mrs. Whitney to her husband who was recuperating from an illness at Toy Town Tavern, in Wichenden, contained the pips, "Please, please come home. We can both be happy. Please decide to do this. I love you."

From entries in Mrs. Whitney's diary at about the same period it was brought out that she was going out in company with Higgins.

Once during the day, under cross examination, Mrs. Whitney threatened to strike back. This was when she threatened to reveal the name of a woman with whom, she charged, her husband had been intimate. A recess was taken to discuss whether the name should be admitted and it was finally decided to bar it.

References to "depths of pleasure that border upon pain," and "flames of desires" were read into the record from her diary today.

"Laurie for lunch. Laurie in the afternoon. Laurie in the evening," was one of the diary entries that was read.

She was perfectly self-possessed, in all outward appearances, when she resumed the stand for the second day of questioning.

Atty. Bushnell asked her if she wanted to say anything in explanation of the notes and other exhibits, after thinking things over during the night. She said she did not remember any of them and never saw any of them, meaning the messages, and about the quotations in her diary said these were from novels and other books.

Asked if the quotation signed "P" was taken from a book, and not a copy of a letter she intended to write to somebody, she said it was from a book, but she could not remember what book.

IN DRAWER

She remembered one quotation was from "The Green Hat," this one being, "Long-legged men make poor lovers."

She admitted writing these: "I can't believe in any man for a long time. You're marred my vision. You'll know all ways—maybe we'll know it sharper and longer than if we marry each other.

"I deliberately chose my way and walked along with my eyes open."

She said she couldn't remember what novels in as phrases were from perhaps from Shutters."

Q.—Did you keep the quotations with the love messages from Higgins? A.—I did.

Q.—Did you keep his messages in a bureau drawer in your bed chamber? A.—No.

Q.—If they were found there will you tell the court you did not put them there? O.—I do not remember it.

She denied her counsel told her, if she was confronted with embarrassing facts in questions, to say she did not remember.

DON'T RECALL

Asked if she recalled writing, "A woman is not the same with every body . . . He carried himself gallant ly toward women, which all added flame to my desires," she said she did not.

Q.—You said yesterday that Higgins used words of affection toward other women? A.—Yes, I did.

Q.—Were you jealous of him? A.—No.

Q.—Do you remember writing this paragraph: "Depths of pleasure trade border upon pain?" A.—I don't remember that.

Bushnell—I prefer not to read this last sentence, but I will show it to you; do you remember writing it? I will also show it to the court. A.—No, I don't remember it.

Q.—Would you say that was from a book? A. I do not. I was. I don't think I would be capable of making it up myself.

Q.—What book was it from? A.—I don't know.

IN SUMMER

In response to another question she said: "In 1923, my husband Mr Higgins and I had a talk during which Mr. Higgins said my husband was very lucky to have such a good wife and that he, Mr. Higgins, would be glad to marry me if I were free, as he loved me."

She turned to the court and said, "I don't like to compliment myself but that's what was said.

Q.—When did Mr. Higgins first express a desire to marry you? A.—In the summer of 1922.

Q.—That was shortly after you met him in April of 1922? A.—Yes I would not call it a proposal.

She said, in answer to further questioning, "No, at all times I have said I would not consider marrying Mr. Higgins, if I were free."

Attorney Bushnell returned to another diary, saying reference to Higgins was on every page, and continued under questioning, she said that Mr. Whitney was away during the dates in the diary in question—at Toy Town Tavern recuperating, and in New York.

An entry of Jan. 12, 1926, was read.

"Green Room Club—canceled engagement. Laurie for lunch. Laurie in the afternoon and Laurie in the evening at the Argonaut Club."

She said she belonged to the Green Room Club, but denied she canceled an engagement to meet someone there in order to go out with Higgins.

Q.—In the diary begins, "Laurie to lunch. Laurie in the afternoon and Laurie at the other club at night" you didn't have much time for anybody else that day, did you? A.—No.

SAW CHILDREN

Q.—Not much time for your children that day. A.—I did. I probably spent as much time with my children that day as with Mr. Higgins.

She was then grilled about tobacco and liquor and she testified her husband never reprimanded her about excessive use of liquor, but that he had spoken to her of excessive use of cigarettes.

She said Whitney did not object very strenuously, but had said he thought her constitution could not stand it.

"I did not drink until after prohibition," she said.

A letter written to Whitney by her during the war, when he was in the navy, dated Sept. 10, 1918 was produced. One extract was read: "Yesterday some of us went around to 'the bars, which were shut up tight as a drum, and so we came home on the Hoop-la." . . . I am smoking like a fiend."

She said that she probably meant three cigarettes a day by the words "smoking like a fiend."

STOP SMOKING

Another letter was produced dated May 4, 1919: "I am stopping smoking, Bunny, I know you hate it so. By the next time I see you, I'll be all off it and won't you be glad. This was to her husband. She said it was her handwriting though she did not recall writing it.

The witness said that the elder Mrs. Whitney wanted her son to marry a wealthy girl. She said she wrote certain things to get "his reaction to habits of drinking, and so on."

Q.—Were you fond of your husband, when you wrote that long legged men make poor lovers? A.—I certainly was.

Q.—And when you wrote that you were dying of voluptuousness? A.—I was fond of him then.

LAWYERS DID IT

Q.—Were you fond of him when you received a letter from Mr Higgins, beginning "My dearest sweetheart?" A.—Yes.

Q.—When you made those notations in your diary where your husband's name hardly appears though Higgins' appears on every page, three times in one day's entry? A.—Yes, I was fond of my husband.

She was asked why in her counter-divorce libel, she went into minute details of charges against her husband, and she said she had nothing to do with it that her lawyers did it all.

She said that Lawrence Higgins' brother sent Atty. David A. Buckley of New York to help her case.

She was asked if she had wanted to besmirch Whitney, his family or his friends. She said she had no such intention.

Mrs. Whitney was about to bring in a woman's name, saying she would fill in a gap in her divorce papers in which she charged her husband with relations "with women unknown," when she was interrupted.

Atty. Bushnell suggested that the name be whispered. Judge Mathews said the matter would be threshed out in chambers and a recess was ordered.

Lt. Gov. Allen Is 'Tried' by Fuller's Council

Members of the Governor's Council walked in unannounced upon the Lieut. Gov. and Mrs Allen at their residence in Norwood last night and presented them with a solid silver water service suitably inscribed.

The presentation followed a mock session of the Council, Councillor Eugene B. Fraser presiding. His Honor was charged with acting without the advice and consent of the Council in going to Pennsylvania in quest of his bride.

Councillor Harvey L. Boutwell was prosecuting attorney. After an exchange of pleasantries by the various members and a stirring defence by the lieutenant-governor all charges were dismissed and he was highly commended for his act.

COOLIDGE SILENTLY VIEWS ANCIENT TEXAS TOAD

Washington, May 3 (AP)—Wrapped not too handsomely in newspapers, but accompanied by Senator Mayfield and other prominent Texans, the famous horned toad that supposedly for 31 years was walled in the cornerstone of the courthouse at Eastland, today was displayed to President Coolidge.

Will M. Wood, its owner, explained the circumstances of its burial and re-discovery. Mr. Coolidge, though amused, limited himself to looking at the creature and touching it with his spectacles. Mr. Wood is taking the animal to New York. Scientists are in dispute over its age.

Thomas, who went aloft alone in the Reliance, monoplane Reliance at 12:30 p. m. yesterday in an attempt to better the world's endurance flight record was still in the air today. He was flying at a height of about 2000 feet over Mitchell field and messaged watchers on the field that the plane was functioning perfectly

At 5 p. m. Thomas had been aloft for 24½ hours. To break the mark established by Eddie Stinson and George Haldeman at Jacksonville, Fla., a few weeks ago, he will have to stay aloft 24 hours 26 minutes 30 seconds, or one hour longer than the present record. CAR BOUGHT BY BOWEN SOUGHT BY WOMAN

On the same day Vincent M. Bowen died, Mrs. Grace H. Morrell, his housekeeper and chief beneficiary of his $40,000 will tried to get delivery on an auto h had ordered, one of her own witnesses admitted today under cross-examination in Middlesex court.

Bowen, Boston ribbon merchant, who lived at Newton Highlands, left two sons $1000 each that brought protest. Paul F. Ryan, auto salesman, of Needham Heights, testified Mrs. Morrell visited his showroom on February 15, the day of Bowen's death, and offered her personal check for the balance due on the car contracted for a month before. The car was not delivered.

Ryan told of a conversation with the elder Bowen the day of the sale.

"Out of a clear sky," he said, "Mr. Bowen said he wished he had a son like me.

"I laughed and told him I couldn't see why. Then he told me his son had forged checks and decried the fact that he had no one to take care of his prospering business.

"He spoke of Mrs. Morrell, saying she took care of him as she would a child," he told the court.

Earle W. Bowen, one of the sons, was recalled to the stand today for cross-examination now told of saving the torn-up love letters of Mrs. Morrell over the period of five years since he picked them out of the fireplace in his father's home.

3 ARRESTED IN HUB HI-JACK ROUNDUP

Spying a truck carrying six big drums that looks as if they contained alcohol, and an automobile that seemed to be trailing it, Sergt. Edward P. O'Neill of Station 9, Roxbury, played his "hunch" today and arrested the occupants of the auto.

One of his captives, he found was Charles A. Lyman of Somerville, much wanted by federal authorities who claim that he is one of a gang of youthful "hi-jackers" who stole alcohol from the B. & M. freight yards.

Two others have already been arrested in this connection and four more are under indictment, the "ring" consisting of seven in all, according to federal agents.

Sergt. O'Neill knew by the firm name on the side of the truck that it was engaged in legitimate transportation even if the big drums contained alcohol, but he was suspicious of the occupants of the automobile, thinking they might have designs on the truck.

William F. Maguire, passing taxi driver, brought Hourihan to the scene and then played the role of wagon driver with a club. PRINCESS MICHAEL CANTACUZENE COMING EAST FOR THE SUMMER, SAYS BETTY ALDEN

The Former Clarissa Curtis to Stop With Parents at Nahant; Will Attend Wedding of Brother

OF TWO-FOLD SIGNIFICANCE IS THE IMPENDING ARRIVAL in town of tall and lovely Princess Michael Cantacuzene, the former Miss Clarissa Curtis. Invariably does the Princess come East from Chicago to be with her parents at Nahant during the warm season. This year she comes East as usual, and comes earlier than usual, in order to see her brother, Thomas J. Curtis, wed with Miss Elizabeth Longfellow in St. James' Episcopal Church in Gotham. And with the Princess comes the tiny daughter, little Irina, to spend her second summer with her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Pelham Curtis, of Boston and Nahant.

THE CURTISES ALREADY HAVE GONE DOWN TO THEIR Nahant establishment. The Princess and her little daughter will arrive there in due season, and join the Curtis wedding party going over to the metropolis for the ceremonial and its preliminary celebrations. They will be guests at the final functions, a dinner and theater party almost on the wedding eve. The bride-elect, Miss Elizabeth Delafield Longfellow is daughter to Mr. and Mrs. Frederick W. Longfellow of Madison ave. The church ceremony is followed by a reception at the Colony Club.

FOR HIS SUPPORTING STAFF, MR. CURTIS HAS ENROLLED a most imposing group. Not every young man about to surrender his bachelor freedom possesses kinsmen and friends so distinguished to act for him. BUSINESS MEN TURNED artists are putting on a show at the Art Club. For sheer love of the thing these men already successful in big business and the professions turn to oils and water colors, or the sculptor's knife, for relaxation in their leisure hours. Results are really extraordinary. As witness the works that almost fill the spacious Art Club exhibition room. Yesterday, in regulation exhibition way, there was a tea to suitably start the exhibition off with a measure of eclat. A throng vastly interested in its "business men artists" and their works was on hand. Art as an avocation for business men is richly productive.

AN INTERESTING NEWLT arrived little daughter is the nursery darling occupying every thought and attention from Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Greenough these days. The youthful mater of the new arrival was Miss Penelope Curtis, daughter of Mrs. Edwin U. Curtis and the late Commissioner Curtis, and with her sister, Mrs. Henry Bohlen (Margaret Curtis), moves and has her social being in the Younger Set circle of supreme importance.

THE MEMORIAL HOLIDAY of May 30, dedicated in so many minds to the old established Chestnut Hill Horse Show, furnishes this year a quarter century mark for that interesting sport event. In ample season for owners of mettlesome equines to have their favorites entered, the prize list is now out. There are classes to fit every size and sort of mount. Class one opening the show is for children's ponies, and Class 22, closing it, is for polo ponies, and in between are to be found all the regulation classes—harness, saddle, jumping, and the hunter classes.

MEMORIAL FUNDS, THE "Richard M. Saltonstall" and the "Francis W. Lee," provide cups in several of the children's classes. The "Montgomery Rollins" memorial cup will be in competition, and so also the "Nora Saltonstall" cup, this latter to reward the three-times winner in Qualified Hunters' class. A new memorial cup, the Andrew Adie, is an interesting addition to the memorial trophies so decidedly of the Chestnut Hill flavor. Five classes are devoted to showing the points of hunters, and of course "hunt teams" with riders in hunt colors, provide spectacular features in abundance.

MESSRS. CLARKE T. BALDWIN, Prescott Bigelow, Elmer Jared Bliss, George Frost, Chester A. Howe, Louis K. Liggett, W. Eugene McGregor, Leverett Saltonstall, Edwin S. Webster (both senior and junior), A. Winsor Weld and George S. West are the names in alphabetical sequence appearing on the prize committee list. Having had a hand in directing many Chestnut Hill shows, each is well qualified for his post. It's a neighborly affair, this Chestnut Hill show, commencing back in the days when the Chestnut Hill families came together for friendly competition, and now grown to enormous proportions, but still essentially imbued with the same old neighborliness.

1500 SUBWAY PASSENGERS IN PANIC

New York, May 3 (INS)—Fifteen hundred panic-stricken men and women groped their way through the dim light of the Interborough tunnel under the Harlem River today, when a ten-car southbound Lexington ave. train jumped the track while making the turn from 149th st. and Mott ave.

Many of the women among the closely-crowded passengers became frightened immediately after the train stalled. A number fainted while men shouted hoarsely and tried to find out what had happened. The power was immediately cut off and guards told the passengers they must walk the track to the 149th st. and Mott ave. station.

With their stronger companions assisting, the women who had collapsed managed with the others to make their way through the dimly-lighted tunnel. Surgeons of the Interborough were waiting at the station and treated a number of passengers.

BIG BLONDE PREPARES TO FLY TO SWEDEN

New York, May 3 (INS) — Bert Hassell, a big blonde aviator of Rockford, Ill., was in New York city today completing arrangements for his contemplated flight of 4200 miles from Rockford to Stockholm, Sweden, by way of Greenland. This for north route, in his opinion, "is the most feasible way to cross the ocean to Europe."

Hassell will be accompanied by another pilot whose identity has not been disclosed.

NIGHT CLUB HIT BY CAMBRIDGE DELEGATE

Cleveland, May 3 (AP)—A proposal that would place the National Congress of Parents and Teachers on record as urging legislation and supervision of night clubs and road houses was before the convention today.

The resolution was drawn up by Mrs. William Tilton, Cambridge, Mass., chairman of the organization's national legislative committee, who believes the automobile and the state road, combined with the road house, help lead youth astray.

"Formerly near home and under the mother's hands, recreation is now often 50 miles away," she said. "While much of it is wholesome, too many night clubs in our cities and resorts of bad intent are springing up along our great state roads. Youth is attracted to them as an adventurer goes to stand on the brink of a volcano."

Mrs. Tilton had a number of methods for regulation of road-houses included in her resolution to present at today's session.

The congress went on record as opposed to the block booking of motion pictures as injurious to the morals of youth. The conference declared many unwholesome films were being foisted upon the public by block distribution.

READING ADMITS $25,000 DECIMO CHECK CONCEALED THE FACTS

HIS SECRET EMPLOYMENT IS EMPHASIZED BY PARKER

query: "Did you understand you had already rendered them a service?" To which Reading sharply replied: "I did not."

READING'S DOUBT DISPELLED

In answer to a series of questions relative to the propriety of acting as Decimo counsel, Reading said, "I meant, when I spoke to Mr. Webster, that I did not want them to advertise the fact that the attorney-general was their counsel, in view of previous investigations of the Decimo Club."

Q.—If they had advertised the fact that the attorney-general was their counsel, it was true, was it not? A.—Only in my private capacity as an attorney. I was not at any time lending them my official position.

Q.—Do you say that any doubt that you might have had with respect to the propriety of accepting employment by the Decimo Club was dispelled by the assurance of Mr. Webster that the club was not trying to purchase your favor? A.—That dispelled any doubt that I may have had that they were trying to get my official sanction.

WAS HE FLATTERED.

Q.—When you asked Mr. Webster in your office whether they were trying to purchase your official sanction, was it a serious inquiry on your part or idle talk? A.—It was a serious inquiry.

Q.—Don't you think now, that you were overborne by obvious flattery? A.—I do not.

Parker then read from Reading's direct testimony, quoting a sentence here and there, one of which was "I am a little afraid of the appearance of representing an organization under investigation." This was testified as having been the attorney-general's statement to Webster before accepting employment.

Reading: "I say that that is an error of the stenographer or of myself in stating it. The investigation in Massachusetts was terminated."

Q.—But it was under investigation in New York? A.—I was not interested so far as New York was concerned. I wish to correct that testimony only so far as the last two words, "under investigation," are concerned.

Q.—Do you question the accuracy of the record? A.—I know the stenographers are excellent ones, but if I used those words I didn't intend to.

Q.—When, after talking with Mr. Barrett or Mr. Lewis, did you confer with either of the Websters? A.—June 1 or 2 in New York.

Q.—Had you advised them of your coming? A.—I do not recall whether I did or not.

Q.—Had you decided before you left for New York that you would accept a Decimo employment, A.—Not fully.

The discussion in New York over the use of Reading's name by the club was an object of inquiry. Reading testified with his eyes closed his hand to his face, leaning on his arm. Answering a query as to what else had been discussed, Reading replied: "The use of my official position."

WHAT THUNDERS PARKER.

"What!" thundered Parker. "You went to New York to discuss the use of your official position?"

A.—I did not say that

Q.—Had you become so well acquainted with Joseph Webster that he understood your position and you his? A.—No.

Reading said he recalled calling upon Deputy Atty-Gen. Selvaggi of New York on June 1 or 2.

Q.—Did you discuss any feature of the impending suit in New York? A.—Not at that time.

Parker turned back to the conference with Webster over the employment.

Reading declared: "I thought I had a duty to myself to see that my official position would not be employed."

Q.—I ask you whether you didn't apprehend that you, incumbent in office as attorney-general, would be advertised as in the employ of the Decimo Club? A.—I was.

READING DRAWS PARALLEL.

Q.—Wouldn't it be true that when you went into the employ of Decimo Club you would still be attorney-general?

Reading here started to draw a parallel between his position and a position Parker was in when he was attorney-general and entered private employment. The former attorney-general replied that the matter had no place in the hearing now on.

Q.—Did you tell the attorney-general of New York that you intended to enter the employ of the Decimo Club? A.—I did not.

Q.—Did you indicate to Mr. Selvaggi that your relations or contemplated relations had been changed? A.—I did not.

Q.—Did not your observation plainly indicate that there would be advertisement of the fact that you were attorney-general of Massachusetts? A.—I didn't want any possible inference that my position as attorney-general would be used.

Q.—Did you believe it to be necessary to have your contract with Decimo so phrased as to make relations with the club a secret? A.—Not for the work I was to do.

He was questioned whether the vote taken by Decimo governors on his retention as counsel was not contrary to fact in that the check for $25,0000 was made out to Barrett who wasn't employed. Reading said he knew of no vote being contrary to fact.

Q.—You understood that Mr. Joseph Webster understood the terms? A.—I thought he did.

Q.—So when the revelation came that the check to pay you for the first payment was made out by Webster's direction (to Barrett) it was a total surprise to you? A.—It was.

Q.—You didn't accept employment at that time. A.—Have not so stated.

PAID FOR SERVICES

"You were keeping record of the honor of your office, weren't you?" Parker questioned once when it developed Reading had no record of a letter under discussion.

Reading was questioned regarding his letter of June 10 to Webster, setting forth the conditions under which he accepted employment.

Q.—That was after you had the $25,000 in your pocket? This letter was on June 10, but there was nothing on June 8 to indicate the terms, was there? A.—There was nothing.

Q.—The payment was for services to be rendered? A.—That's right.

Parker inquired whether or not, in payment of a $25,000 fee, a client was not entitled to a full statement of the terms of his counsel's employment.

A.—They were, and had my receipt in their possession.

DIDN'T WANT TO BROADCAST.

Parker asked whether the witness didn't think a client was entitled to make public the name of his counsel and Reading replied: "The fact that I was employed I didn't want to broadcast."

Q.—Do you know, sir, in respect to any honorable contract, why any portion should be kept secret?

Reading replied that if Parker wished the question discussed philosophically he would introduce a list of cases in which it was considered advisable to do so.

Reading: "I know of nothing in law or morals which precludes the attorney-general of Massachusetts from entering private employment." He alluded to the ringing voice of Parker. "You'd think this employment was extraordinary," he said.

SAW NOTHING DISHONORABLE

Q.—Did you believe that keeping the contract from the people was an honorable act? A.—I saw nothing dishonorable about it.

Q.—Suppose a question should arise in Massachusetts with respect to the legality of the organization of the organization under the scheme you had prepared, would the organization be at liberty to say that you, being at the time attorney-general of Massachusetts, had drawn the by-laws and constitution which might be questioned.

A.—I thought I had made that clear when I stated that if at any time there was any question as to the legality of Decimo Club in Massachusetts, I was to be permitted to withdraw.

Q.—That was not my question. What I asked you was whether or not the organization had the right to inform anyone that you were counsel? A.—I have stipulated that my position was not to be advertised.

Q.—If that situation had arisen, I want to know whether your client had the right to say that you were counsel or whether you forbade your client to reveal the truth? A.—If there was any conflict between my official duty and private, I felt that I could withdraw from my private employment. I saw no reason why I could not do work for any other corporation or individual. I could see no reason why I should not be employed by the Decimo Club.

Q.—Do you know of any reason why, if your employment by the Decimo Club was honorable, it shouldn't have been recognized and received by the club and recognized by you? A.—I thought my work was recorded by the club.

Q.—Did you think that by receiving cash from a check made out to Barrett that that was a process by which the true facts would be concealed, or whether in truth and honor you should have received the money in that way? A.—I believe you have been told by several witnesses the circumstances under which the check was drawn to Mr. Barrett and the money given to me. When the check was given to Mr. Barrett, he was explicitly told that it was intended for me.

CONCEALED THE TRUTH

Q.—Don't you know that you received cash from a check not in accordance with the facts? A.—Oh, that's obvious.

Q.—Then answer my question. Didn't the check conceal the truth that the money was intended for you? A.—I don't think it is fair to take just one incident, Mr. Parker. I had given a receipt at the same time.

Reading then admitted that the check did not disclose the fact that the money, when it was cashed, was for him. His name did not appear upon it anywhere.

Q.—The check alone would have concealed the fact that you were employed? A.—So far as the check itself, without any evidence, yes.

Q.—The transaction was so conducted, so fra as the check was concerned and the vote of the Decimo Club governors was concerned, that there was no disclosure of your name? A.—If my name did not appear on the check, yes.

Q.—And yet in fact you received $25,000 from that organization? A.—Yes.

Following a brief recess, Attr. Starr Parsons, for Reading conferred with Chairman James and Parker.

Parsons addressed the committee and said: "Last week Mr. Reading hurt his back so seriously as to make him unable to sleep nights. From lack of sleep his appearance of physical discomfort was noticeable yesterday afternoon. We have made strenuous efforts to get other witnesses in order not to waste the time of the committee. These witnesses will be ready at 3 o'clock. We ask that Mr. Reading be excused in order that he can have proper physical rest."

Reading interposed to say: "I want to make it clear that the postponement is made at the request of counsel. I would personally like to go on and testify from early in the morning until late at night."

Parsons said the request was made by counsel in opposition to Reading's own wishes.

Reading said he couldn't tell when his injury would be healed. Sacroiliac is the medical term for the injury from which he is suffering.

WOMEN Doctors despise..

"They don't take care of their bodies," declared one doctor angrily. "They let the poisons of constipation accumulate in the system—and wonder why they always feel dragged through a knot-hole." One reason for this is that women have shunned ordinary laxatives. Cathartics that wrack the system—health foods that take weeks to act...

Feen-a-mint is different!

It's just like a bit of delicious chewing gum: You don't swallow it—you chew it!

Its magic laxative principle is released slowly, the way science meant it to be released. It actually becomes part of the digestive fluids—does not disturb digestion. It works with the body—not against it!

It won't torture you with griping pains. It won't poison or weaken the system. It won't enslave you to laxative pills. Get Feen-a-mint at your druggist's. Correct constipation—now!

BOSTON, THURSDAY, MAY 3, 1928

SECOND SECTION

Story of Gay Life at Harvard; Battle of Hearts

Gay Leonard, young, beautiful, spoiled darling of fortune, is the center of attraction at a gay dance in Boston on the eve of a Harvard-Yale football game. Her escort is Alan Pomeroy, an athletic young man. She meets many admirers, but her thoughts are with Jerry Davis in New York, whom her parents have forbidden her to see. Gay asks Alan if he knows Jerry. Alan says Jerry is worthless. Dolly Quinn begins work as hostess in a Garden of Jazz. One of the patrons tries caveman tactics with her and she presses the hot end of a cigarette on the hand that clutches her shoulder.

(NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY)

CHAPTER 4

THE dressing room for women employes of the Garden of Jazz was ugly and dirty. But to Dolly Quinn just then it was a blessed refuge. She reached it breathlessly and sank down on the wooden bench before the line of mirrors. She braced her elbows on the dressing table, pressed clenched fists against her throbbing temples, closed her eyes. "Ooh," she sighed. "Golly!"

Once she emitted a tiny snort of disgust. Once, remembering the name that Mr. Macmahon in his wrath and pain had hurled at her, she scowled and bit her lip, and pounded her fists together furiously, as if the gentleman's slick head were between them.

And at last she jerked her own head up and confronted herself in the looking-glass. "Well," she said, "I guess this means you're fired, doesn't it, hmm?"

Blue eyes gazed back at her somberly. They were large eyes, frank, wide, nothing-up-the-sleeve eyes, and the blue of them was the high, lovely blue of a picture-postcard ocean. Above them, straight black eyebrows tweezered by Nature almost met in her present anxiety. The creamy shoulders, bare except where her gown ran slim pennants of pink chiffon, sagged a little, and the tilt of the black head was not as dauntless, as debonair, as usual. There was a dimple in her right cheek; but it was far from a mirthful dimple now. Not a smile, but a grim tightness of the curved coral lips produced it.

Beauty in distress.

Of the distress and its causes, more will presently be told. Meanwhile there is this to be said, in footnote, of the beauty: It was not the flamboyant type. You did not stare at it on the street—but after you were past you had a vague conviction that you should have, a sense of something subtle overlooked. When you met her, you were drawn to her by some inward sweetness not definable. The realization that her features were exquisite came second, and seemed relatively unimportant.

It was, moreover, a delicate, a thoroughbred type of beauty—astonishing, considering her ancestry. It was not a beauty that belonged in the Broadway Garden of Jazz. It was not a beauty that the Garden could appreciate. Some people prefer lithographs to water colors, drums to violins, geraniums to small sweet forget-me-nots.

She took her coat from its hook and put it on, reflecting dreurily as she did so that a payment came due on it tomorrow. She pulled a diminutive black felt hat low over one brow. Coat and hat were undeniably inexpensive; but they were not cheap. They had a certain air, a certain artfulness.

Dolly Quin bought few hats, but the hats she did buy fitted close to the crown, depended for effect on line rather than trimming, were never that fatal half-inch too long in the back of the neck. She bought one coat a year, not a gay coat, or a fur-edged coat (because the fur couldn't be real), but a slim coat of dark cloth that might be held around her little figure snugly and that wore a brave bright flower on its collar. Taste was a gift of hers, inherited Heaven knew where. Certainly not from Amelia Quinn, her mother, who had lived and died in a calico wrapper and a dotted Swiss boudoir cap.

Seating herself once more at the dressing table, she opened her hand bag and checked over its contents. There was a small plain linen handkerchief; a vanity case with a double lid, red powder cake in one side, white in the other; her latchkey to Mrs. Minatee's boarding house; a stub of pencil; a notebook half full of hasty thumbnail sketches; and a dollar and thirty-seven cents.

"But," remarked Dolly Quinn, "tomorrow's pay day—"

And then, because of her stock-taking reminded her of James (Gyp) Macmahon, and because she possessed a sense of humor that never let her be mournful long over anything as fundamentally ridiculous as he, she laughed. Buddy, carefree, 18-year-old daughter.

"Fool!" she said. His verbal epitaph.

HUB MARINE SEES 7000 BUTCHERED IN CHINA

This is the first of a series of three articles upon conditions in China as seen by a United States marine during the past 11 months in that country.

By DANIEL R. BROWN, EX-MARINE OF BOSTON
as told to
WILLIAM A. CONSODINE,
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

Copyright, 1928, by International News Service.

Thousands of Chinese, I should say about seven thousand, were tortured and butchered in China to my knowledge during the eleven-month period that I was there with the Headquarters Co., First Battalion, United States Marines.

Practically all of them were political prisoners, many of them accused of having Bolshevik leanings. They were killed by their own countrymen, without even the formality of a trial.

The killings took place every other Sunday at Tien-Tsen, the city in Northern China at which we were stationed for some months. They were such ordinary occurrences there that photos of the killings were frequently taken by small shopmen, for sale to foreigners and to marines for their albums.

DOUBLE BLADED KNIFE

In Southern China I was told that thousands more were killed just on a suspicion that they were associated with the Reds.

The killings were the most horrible sights that anyone could think of.

The prisoners were lined up with their arms tied behind their backs; then they were forced to kneel. An executioner was assigned to each man and was given a long double bladed knife.

The executioner would approach his victim, swing the knife above his head once, twice or three times. The head must be severed entirely from the body on one of the three tries or else the executioner lost his life.

If he succeeded in severing the head from the neck, and he nearly always did, the executioner received about a half-dollar in our money.

The heads would lie on the street of the native city where the execution took place for days. Often there would be a dozen or 15 heads in an alley for weeks. Frequently they

CHECKS MADE OUT TO HER SHE NEVER SAW

Court House, Albany, N. Y., May 3 (AP)—Clara Blanche Knapp, Middlebury, Vt., college teacher, today played her role of star witness for the prosecution against her stepmother, Mrs. Florence E. S. Knapp, former Secretary of State, charged with misuse of 1925 State census funds.

With eyes constantly averted from her stepmother's seat, Miss Knapp's voice, low words at first, grew firmer as it developed that more than a dozen census pay checks in her name had been drawn up, endorsed, cashed and used without her knowledge.

When luncheon recess was ordered, looking at her stepmother for the first time, Clara Knapp went to the defendant, put out her hand and said:

"I hope I haven't hurt you."

"I am safe," Mrs. Knapp replied grasping the proffered hand.

George E. Mehler, chief prosecuting attorney, in five minutes had brought from the witness the statements that she had never lived in Albany, had never done any State census work, did not know that she had been placed on a State payroll and had never done any work for New York State.

Miss Knapp testified she was not in the State at times supposed to have been covered by census pay checks in her favor.

Miss Knapp told of receiving from Mrs. Knapp some time in the summer of 1925 while she was on vacation in New Hampshire a check for $212.43 and a letter. To this

NOTE WINS GIFT FOR BIRTHDAY

The art of good letter writing is one of the best assets which any boy or girl can have when they come to leave school and face the real battle of life.

Here is a chance to practice this art, and at the same time win recognition. The Boston Evening American wants boys and girls under 16 years of age to be its guests at a performance at Loew's State Theater on their birthday.

To obtain this privilege, a letter must be written to the Birthday Editor telling him why the writer is glad that his or her birthday happens to fall on the date it does.

Lengthy and involved letters are not necessary. The test lies in giving your reasons in as few words as possible. Your name and address, your age, and why you are glad of your birthdate, should occupy only a few lines.

In addition to the age limit of 16 years, there is one other rule to remember, mail your letters within the week which ends on your birthday. If your letter is a good one, you will receive a ticket to the theatre and a birthday card by return mail.

Address Birthday Editor, Boston Evening American, 5 Winthrop sq., Boston.

Summer Cruises to Scotland and Ireland

The Royal Mail Steam Packet Company has included a new feature in its summer cruises program for the coming season. The steamer Avon will sail from Southampton, August 3, on a 15-day cruise around Ireland, continuing from Liverpool on August 18, on a 14-day cruise around Scotland. Stops at various ports will give opportunity for visits to places of historic and scenic interest.

The two new motor vessels of the Royal Mail Line, the Alcantara and Asturias, will each make a 14-day cruise in the Mediterranean, including visits in Spain, Portugal, Morocco and other countries. Sailings will be from Southampton on June 1 and 22. These vessels are regularly employed in the Europe-South American service.

Nobody Loves a Skinny Woman!

Gain pounds of weight and strength in 3 weeks with new YEAST and IRON—or pay nothing

Get a Lovely Skin for an Ugly One

"Gained 20 Pounds!"

"When I started taking Ironized Yeast a month ago I weighed only 97 pounds and I could hardly drag myself around. Today I weigh 110 pounds and I feel fine. Ironized Yeast surely helped me," say I."—Mrs. C. B., Hattiesburg, Miss.

Folks are amazed at Ironized Yeast. They see 5 to 15 pounds gained in 3 weeks! Skinny limbs covered with rounded, graceful flesh! Ugly hollows in shoulders filled up! Eyes sparkling with health. They ask—how does Ironized Yeast work so quickly?

How Ironized Yeast Builds Quick Flesh and Health

Ironized Yeast is two tonics in one—weight building Yeast and strengthening iron. The yeast is the part used in making malt, and which makes malt so beneficial. It is specially cultured yeast, concentrated to give the utmost in flesh-producing value.

This Yeast is treated with pure, vegetable iron, the same as is, spinach, lettuce and celery. In this form Iron is easily assimilated by the body, making rich, red blood and toning up nerves and muscles.

Only when Yeast is Iron tinted in this way is it more effective—for Iron is needed to bring out the weight-building, strengthening values of Yeast. By this special formula Ironized Yeast gives you results in half the time required by yeast or iron taken separately.

If you are underweight, nervous or tired, you need Ironized Yeast. Start it today. It does not cause gas or bloating. Safe for everybody—containing no harmful drugs. Pleasant-tasting tablets in a handy bottle.

Try It on "Money Back" Offer

Go today to any drug store and get a full size treatment of Ironized Yeast. If not delighted, get your money back. If inconvenient to buy from the druggist, send $1.00 direct to the IRONIZED YEAST CO., Atlanta, Ga., Desk 327-A.

CAUTION! While the amazing health-building value of IRONIZED YEAST tablets has been clearly and positively demonstrated in cases of lack of energy, indigestion, constipation, skin eruptions, poor complexion, and a generally weakened physical and mental condition, IRONIZED YEAST should not be used by anyone who OBJECTS to having weight increased to normal.—J. MAYOR LAUDS FOOD DRIVE

CITY OF BOSTON
OFFICE OF THE MAYOR
CITY HALL

May 1, 1928.

To the Editor of the Boston Evening American,
Boston, Massachusetts.

Dear Sir:

Pure food is one of the outstanding factors in right living, and Boston has been particularly fortunate in the safe and wholesome character of its supply.

Great credit for this is due to our Health Department under the competent directorship of Doctor Francis X. Whitney and his Deputy in charge of the food inspection work here.

It is a great pleasure to cooperate with the Boston Evening American and to loan it the services of such an experienced official as Doctor Patrick H. Mullowney of the Boston Health Department to assist in bringing to the attention of the public in an educational way the value of pure food with all that it means.

The Boston Evening American is heartily to be commended in this latest campaign which touches so intimately the life of our great community.

Sincerely yours,
Mayor

1 DEAD, 5 INJURED, IN 2 AIRPLANE CRASHES

Chicago, May 3 (INS)—Two persons were reported dying today and a third was seriously injured as the result of an airplane crash. Those believed fatally injured are Miss Dora Montgomery, 24, and Eugene Apfelbaum, 24.

At Sturgis, Mich., Fred H. Newman, 16, was killed when the plane in which he was a passenger crashed to the ground. Two were injured.

THUGS AND MURDERERS AGREE WITH THIS JUROR

Chicago, May 3 (AP)—In the view of a juror who prevented the maximum penalty for some boy bandits, it is self-defence wor a stick-up man to kill a victim who resists.

"This is a free country," says Lawrence O'Toole, "and a man can go out and pull a stick-up if he can get away with it." Lawrence is now accused of contempt of court and perjury.

PLAN GALA FETE AT PEMBERTON

Rhode Island's "Clambake King," John J. Griffin, is coming to Pemberton Point to add his prestige and famous menu to the South Shore attractions. Pemberton Point is the historic homestery formerly known as the Pemberton Inn, half an hour's sail down the harbor on the way to Nantasket.

J. J. Griffin

Pemberton Point will have a gala opening Sunday, May 13, with State and city dignitaries and a host of show folk, including the entire "Good News" company as special guests. The far-famed Rhode Island clambake will be served by Miss Hoat Griffin on Sundays only, for a couple of weeks, but beginning May 20, this historic New England feast, which originated with the Indians and has been improved by Yankee chefs, will be served every day.

The clams will be baked in seaweed on the rocks. They will be the principal feature of the Griffin shore dinner. Forty years' specializing in the New England delicacy has given Mr. Griffin his title of "Clambake King." Capt. Henry will be in charge of the Pemberton Point feasts, assisted by a corps of Rocky Point dinner experts.

The Nantasket boats will leave Rowes Wharf on Sundays at 10:15, 12:10 and 2:15 up to May 30, and return from Pemberton at 4:10 and 7:10. Free parking space is provided at Rowes Wharf, Sundays only.

ANOTHER BOAT PROVIDED FOR CRUISING DANCERS

Again this season the ballroom boat Mayflower is proving its popularity with the dancers by the demand for this type of entertainment. Every Thursday, Friday and saturday evening at 8:30, the big boat—one of the Nantasket Beach lines—makes its three-hour sail in Boston Harbor by moonlight, and returns, at 11:30 p. m.

Because of the popularity of these trips this year, Frederic L. Lane has provided another boat, the Rose Standish, for the dancers' exhibit's pleasure. Beginning May 29 the dancing boats will sail every weekday evening.

TOURISTS LURED BY NOVA SCOTIA SALMON

The fact that salmon are going up the rivers in western Nova Scotia is good news for anglers. Fishermen visiting the Annapolis river have been meeting with excellent success. Many good salmon have been caught as far up as Middleton, Round Hill, and many fine catches have been reported at Paradise and Round Hill. Salmon are being taken a month earlier and in greater numbers than ever before.

People going in quest of salmon this spring will do well to look into the all-expense fishing trips operated from Boston by steamer to Yarmouth, N. S., every Monday, beginning the middle of May. These trips are very reasonable and the cost includes first-class steamer accommodations and fares on the Dominion Atlantic Railway, also berths, parlor cars, meals and board at the fishing camp, and motor transportation, guides, canoes and a fishing license. The only things it does not provide for are meals in transit on ship or train, and tips.

MIDDLESEX COURT ADJOURNS; NO CASES

The Middlesex Superior Criminal Court sitting at East Cambridge has adjourned until next Wednesday, due to the fact that there are no more criminal cases on the docket available for trial.

Many a month for the past year, the docket had been cleared of cases, and on several occasions court has been adjourned before the end of a session due to the fact that the docket has been "cleaned up."

Steamship Service Opens Monday to St. John, N. B.

The Eastern steamship lines announce the opening of the Boston-St. John, New Brunswick, service beginning Monday May 21, from Boston. The liner Governor Dingley will sail on a two-round-trips-per-week schedule, leaving Boston, Mondays and Fridays. Later on in the season this service will be increased to four round-trips per week, by the addition of two direct sailings between Boston and St. John. The Governor Dingley makes a stop, both leaving and returning, at Eastport and Lubec, Maine.

GREENLY ISLE IN TOURS

Americans who sail for Europe via the Canadian Pacific St. Lawrence route between late June and early September, will get a fine view of the new famous Greenly Island. Belle Island and the Belle Isle Straits, according to an interview here today with William Baird, steamship passenger traffic manager of the Canadian Pacific steamships.

The 15 liners of the Atlantic fleet of the Canadian Pacific, including the two new "Duchess" ships, will use the Straits of Belle Isle during the period mentioned, sailing from Montreal and Quebec, and returning to those ports from Europe. In summer the view surrounding these islands is probably the most rugged and picturesque to be seen anywhere.

OFFER EUROPE TOUR FOR $355

Announcement has been made by G. F. Ravenel, manager of the International Mercantile Marine Company, Boston, that the White Star-Red Star Lines are offering an all-expense vacation tour of 30 days to Europe, at the moderate price of $355.

This special tour has been arranged for those having limited means and a limited time at their disposal for a vacation trip. The dates also have been fixed in the time when tourist rush is ended and comfortable steamship and hotel accommodations may be secured.

The party will sail from Boston on the Celtic, September 3, landing at Cobh (Queenstown), proceeding to Blarney Castle, Lakes of Killarney, Dublin to Liverpool. An unusual feature of the tour will be two days motoring in England, from Chester, through the Shakespeare country, to London.

After sightseeing in London, the party will proceed to Paris, thence to Brussels and embark at Antwerp on the Laplander, September 28. The entire tour on sea and land will be under the guidance of F. J. Reuter, passenger manager. An illustrated folder giving complete itinerary may be procured from the Boston Evening American Travel Bureau, at 5 Winthrop Sq., Boston.

Scouts Plan Jamboree

Boy Scouts of East Boston will hold a jamboree Saturday. They will assemble at Maverick sq. at 1:45, and march through Meridian, Marion and Bennington sts. to Neptune rd., then to World War Memorial Park. Dist. Commr. Thomas E. Barry will be in charge.

Fight Probe Just a Habit Sharkey Figured

Jack Strange Case Rise Spectacular May Be Hero Yet

By NICK FLATLEY

FIGHT INVESTIGATION JUST PART OF RACKET

SPORTS resemble politics, these days. Nothing gets past without an investigation. There's always a howl of fake after every big engagement, no matter what. Even in the amateur line, the probe is creeping in. A cynical person would be inclined to think that the talk of the frame-up was itself a publicity frame-up.

Nick Flatley

The boys in New York are now busy investigating the sudden obliteration of Jack Delaney, the Rapier of the North, by Mister Sharkey. It was whispered and then shouted that the fight was "in the bag." The fact that betting odds were as long as 3 to 1 on Sharkey seems to be the foundation for most of the shouting.

Nobody has stopped to consider that those odds were reasonable. The so-called Rapier had fought four heavyweights. And except for a dubious decision in the Paolino melee, the Rapier had resembled a somewhat used toothpick.

He was beaten by Jimmy Maloney and then by Tom Heeney, and he didn't hit either one hard enough to dust off talcum powder. Jack, who was clever and classy against boys of his own weight, was always a bust against the bigger men.

And Sharkey was the best of the real heavies that he met. Regardless of what happened in the Tar's rows with Heeney and Risko. The gamblers knew that Mister Sharkey was in shape for this quarrel; that he had done some real training. They knew, too, that the Boston battler would be perfectly willing to trade blows with Mr. Delaney. And they were aware of the fact that the Rapier had never shown any distinct liking for the matter of swapping haymakers.

Sharkey had every advantage, and the price makers realized it. It was one fight that didn't need to be satchelled, as they say along the Rialto. It was a natural cinch to dope the result, if all was on the up and up.

The boys who toss fights don't walk in and get their ears knocked loose. They take a graceful kayo gracefully on the chin, where it doesn't hurt much and doesn't show afterward. They don't stagger up a couple of times after they've been flattened, either.

This particular howl just seems to be the natural sequel to a big fight. It advertises Mister Sharkey quite a bit, and makes Tex Rickard weep each time he thinks of his July gate. Sharkey, now, would draw twice as much as two Heeneys.

SHARKEY IS LIKE A GRIDDLE CAKE—ALWAYS ON THE PAN.

Poor Sharkey gets the loud razzo
From every losing bet:
He also gets big purses, too.
So, therefore, he should fret.

SHARKEY'S CASE PECULIAR IN RING HISTORY

THE Sharkey case is the most peculiar in all the history of the ring. No matter what the young man does, he's wrong. His rise to ring heights was spectacular. He tackled the fighters that Dempsey, the champ, was dodging. He was stacked against the tough boys that all the contenders sidestepped.

He first removed the colored menace from the heavy division. He beat George Godfrey and then Harry Wills, a pair of tough babies that had all the so-called great fighters running around in circles. He took on Mike McTigue, when the canny Irishman had the division frightened. Then he hayoed Jimmy Maloney, when James, by knocking out half a dozen second raters and beat Jack Delaney, had most of them scared stiff.

That was all done in less than a year. The novice, by asking no favors and taking them as they came, sailed right to the very crest. But he gained no popularity whatever. His record over three years makes Tunney's look like a joke.

Yet he gets the razz, as they say, whenever he hops into the ring. He's a clean living, straight shooting young man, who would measure up to any set of Sunday school rules. He has proved his courage a dozen times, beyond doubt. He has a mighty likeable personality, if one knows him at all. But he doesn't click with the mob.

Some fighters wax rich on unpopularity. Sharkey is doing that, anyhow. And we have an idea that if he keeps up for a year or so, now that he's back, he'll find a heart warming change in sentiment. He has it coming.

'Twixt Tee and Cup

By BILL GRIMES

The two day Woodland Golf Club open four-ball tournament opens today and some of the best teams in this vicinity will be out battling for the fine array of prizes offered for the best gross and net scores.

Although Percy F. Crosby and Tommie Welch, who captured the first gross last year, and Eddie Lowery and Billy McPhail, Norfolk's finest gift to the golf world, are the favorites for the low gross trophies, it will be well for the fans to watch Emory P. Stratton of Brae and Joe Batchelder of Salem.

John Slattery and Marcus Knowlton, who carrying a 15 handicap, clicked off a better ball of 73 and captured the first net prize, are [illegible] Meers and Bill Doody [illegible] posed of veterans, Capt. Don Martin, pair of youngsters who played [illegible] in fine golf many of the team who [illegible] seems also to win his matches.

Another team which will be right up with the winners, when the final figures for the Woodland Four-Ball are compiled, is W. N. Trowbridge of Calumet and G. S. Talbot of Crow Point. For the past three years Trowbridge has been gradually pulling up with the best in this section, while Talbot holds the honor of being a participant in one of the longest extra hole matches ever played, when he and his partner, A. K. Pope went ten extra holes with Charlie Crane and Carl Hibbard at Lasea County.

The Boston College high school will be represented for the first time by a golf team. With Tommie Fahey, the Massachusetts caddy champion, and John Slattery of Woodland as coaches, the Lawrence school should meet with fair [illegible] to [illegible] in [illegible] golf [illegible] Boston [illegible] has arranged to play Lexington and Newton. School teams [illegible] playing B. C. high should [illegible] minute with Tommie Fahey.

Dick Lincoln will return to his pro berth at the Hatherley Country Club at Minot about the middle of the month. Considering that last season was his first year out, Dick Lincoln did a very creditable job at Hatherley.

Until this season Mrs. S. D. Waxman, the former W. G. A. champion, was one of the best putters in the association. However, she has been very much off form this year on the greens and she is a prize her string of defeats to her unruly putter.

Eddie Bennett, of Merrimac Valley and the Andover country clubs, is showing himself for the Massachusetts Junior championships under the watchful eye of John Kennedy. Bennett is a student at the De Witt Clinton school, where Keenan her his outdoor coaching, takes a lesson every day. Bennett is an extremely long and consistently straight hitter, and is developing a short game under Keenan's tutelage.

to baseball this spring, it is unlikely that the "kids" will be at top form.

Mrs. R. E. Coome, of the Kernwood Country Club, is one of the very few W. G. A. second team players who has not met with defeat. Mrs. Coome has been on the winning end of three matches, two of which were extra hole battles.

N. Y. Giants Have Ousted F. X. McQuade

New York, May 3—Judge Francis X. McQuade, for 10 years treasurer of the National Exhibition Company, which operates the New York Giants, was removed from office at a meeting of the directors of the corporation.

In making official announcement of the coup tonight, spokesmen for the Giants said the move was made "in the interests of harmony on the ball club."

FRANCE ELIMINATED FROM TENNIS TOURNEY

London, May 3 (INS)—France was eliminated today from the court tennis tournament for the Bathurst cup when the American players, C. W. Wright and J. Van Alen, defeated the Frenchmen, Worth and Duvier, by 6—3, 8—1, 6—4.

The Americans had won the singles yesterday. On Saturday the Americans will play the British.

Strangler Lewis Keeps Mat Title

Los Angeles, May 3 (AP)—Ed "Strangler" Lewis successfully defended his heavyweight wrestling crown here last night when Nick Lutze, 25-year-old Chicago grappler, downed with a resounding slam for the first and only fall of the finish title bout, was unable to come back.

Lewis took the fall after 1 hour 10 minutes and 35 seconds of wrestling. He obtained it by bodily picking up his opponent and slamming him with all his strength to the mat. Lewis proceeded to choke a headlock hold on Lutze, but it was unnecessary, for the Chicagoan was unconscious.

As Lutze was unable to return in five minutes, Lewis was awarded the match.

PYLE MAY BE FORCED TO RUN HIMSELF

Normal, Ill., May 3 (AP)—Charley "Cash" Pyle didn't loll about in his $25,000 "land yacht" to watch his army of transcontinental racers plod their weary way to fame and fortune today. Instead he rode in an open flivver.

The luxury that has been his since the start of the cross-country derby at Los Angeles March 4 was ended abruptly near Joliet yesterday when a deputy sheriff seized the "land yacht," a 12-ton truck equipped with a radio, shower bath, berths, electrical refrigeration and every modern convenience.

The writ was drawn in favor of the defunct Illinois Trust & Savings Bank of Champaign, Ill., receivers of which say Pyle owes them $12,000 on an unsecured note. When the cash was not forthcoming, the deputy confronted Pyle with the writ and took the truck. Pyle then had to hire a car to take him to Normal, last night's stop.

Harold "Red" Grange, assistant to Pyle in the derby and former University of Illinois football ace, also was threatened with a similar writ, the receivers claiming he owes the bank $21,502 on another note. Both notes were signed about three years ago, said the receivers.

Peter Gavuzzi of Southampton, England, lost 35 minutes and one second of his lead in the derby by finishing in a tie for 16th place in the 84-mile jaunt from Lincoln to Normal yesterday, but still retains his lead over the field of 71 runners of 4 hours and 51 minutes. It was the first day the Englishman had run in the derby without his beard.

Taking the defeat as an old omen, he intends to grow a new beard to carry all the way to New York, the final stop. Andrew Payne of Claremore still holds second place with the time of 5:04.43 for the 2262.8 miles traversed so far.

Pontiac, Ill., was today's destination.

Friends Say Pyle Won't Quit Race

New York, May 3 (INS)—New York friends of (Cross Country) Pyle were certain today that his bunion derby from Los Angeles to New York would carry on to its scheduled finish at the Yankee Stadium here, in spite of the financial difficulties it is experiencing en route.

They declared that Pyle and Red Grange, who are conducting the race on a 50-50 basis, now in a position to carry the financing of a half-dozen more laps, if need be. Indications here that recently they were paid $38,000 in royalties from a candy company using Grange's name.

"Old claims against Pyle and Grange may result in attachments at certain cities in Texas," declared a man closely associated with the promoters. "But you can bet that the race will be finished."

Reports have been prevalent here for some time that Pyle's transcontinental Marathon had not been bringing in the revenues that had been anticipated. These declared that so far it had been a losing venture for the promoter and his former star of the football field.

ARGONNE BOOKS HAROLD MAYS

The Argonne A. A. comes back on the fighting line next Wednesday night, May 9 with a corking good heavyweight match. Harold Mays of Bayonne, N. J., the boy who got the referee's decision over Ernie Schaaf, last Monday night at Newark has been matched to battle Mat Adgie the sensational Philadelphia heavyweight, next Wednesday night for the Argonne A. A.

Harold Mays is one of the new sensations in the heavyweight ranks and today is classed with Paul Berlenbach. He is clean cut win over Ernie Schaaf at the Newark Armory last Monday night.

Mat Adgie who meets Mays is one of the greatest club fighters that ever came out of Philadelphia. A few months ago in Philly he handed Joe Monte an artful lesson in a fast 10-round bout and in the past year he has beaten Jack DeMave, Martino Levinsky, King Solomon, Joe Lohaman, Tom Sayers, and loaed two great 10-round fights with Harold Mays and Ace and Emanuel.

The Philadelphia entry for heavyweight honors was just drafted from the Pacific coast where he boxed Jack Dempsey a prelude, Armand Emanuel a great 10-round fight.

Harold Mays has also beaten Bob Lawson, Tom Sayers, Rennie Touchstone, Ernie Schaaf, Jack DeMave and many more to be numerous to mention. Adgie and Mays should furnish the Boston fans with one of the greatest heavyweight bouts ever seen in this city. Both heavyweights will arrive in town Monday and finish training at Jim Toland's gym on Friend street.

Matchmaker Eddie Mack is working on a preliminary card that will bring out all local talent and bound to please.

RED SOX vs. PHILADELPHIA

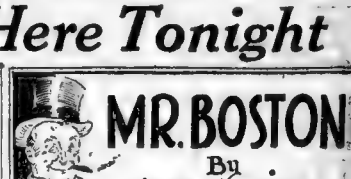
MR. BOSTON

By Jack Conway



"I RAN into Bob Quinn, Red Sox owner, the other day," orated Mr. Boston today. "It was only natural he should be talking about the Carrigans.

"I would rather only make $100,000 and have a winning ball club than to make $500,000 and have a loser," opened Bob. "I figure that in time the Sox will come through and make everybody happy.

"Building up a ball club is a touch stunt. During the time I have owned the Red Sox, we have tried out 300 to 400 young players, some of whom have fine minor league records. Most of them ended up back in the minors.

"That is a great deal of luck in developing ball players. When I went to the St. Louis Browns as business manager, the team was very weak. I looked around the bushes for a short while and picked up a flock of youngsters, most of whom later became major league stars. The result was the Browns were soon up there in the big fight.

"I thought I could do the same thing in Boston, but have had more trouble getting together the proper combination. Since Bill Carrigan has been managing the club things have picked up a great deal. It won't be long now as the old saying goes.

"I WOULD pay a big sum of money for a machine which could sell me if a young ball player possessed a fighting heart. It is usually a question of heart when the minor league star busts in the big show. There are certain players who are sensations in the minor leagues, but who are not worth a nickle in the big show. They choke up when put to the big test.

"It is the same in other branches of athletics. The old heart goes one a long ways.

"Tom was held back the development of young players. It wrecked most of the minor leagues. The small clubs did not get back on a real working basis until three and four years after the war ended.

"The old fellows keep the youngsters off the minor league clubs, and as a result the rookies are slow in developing.

"I DO not believe that golf, automobiles and other forms of sport and recreation have injured baseball. The old game will continue to grow in popularity. It has a tremendous hold on the American public.

"Sunday baseball would help develop winning ball clubs in Boston. The owners could use the money made on Sunday ball in purchasing new players. It is difficult for clubs playing in cities where Sunday baseball is not allowed to compete with those in spots where there is Sunday baseball. Think of the tremendous revenue the Yankees and Giants make each year out of Sunday baseball.

"Meanwhile Carrigan and myself will keep plugging along and in time will produce a winner for Boston fans."

Eagles Lack Strength for Dual Meet With Purple

HOLY CROSS EXPECTS TO WIN

Has Better Balanced Track Team Than B. C. In Dual Meet Here Tomorrow

Coach Bart Sullivan and his Holy Cross track team will sweep down on Jack Ryder's Eagle outfit with every intention of giving B. C. the worst track drubbing in the history of these colorful rivals at University Heights tomorrow afternoon.

With a well balanced team and some of the nation's collegiate track stars in its ranks, Holy Cross seems capable of performing the task. Boston College is greatly weakened by the loss of many point winners from the team which beat Holy Cross in Worcester last spring.

Jack Ryder isn't snoozing, for he feels that his boys will run their heads off to keep Holy Cross from too decisive a win. B. C. has a fighting group of trackmen, but the ability in its members is missing.

For the past six years Boston College has lost but one track meet to the Crusaders. Jack Ryder has always managed to put forth a team capable of downing the Purple. But when this year's team was picked up by the loss of many stars, Ryder couldn't find any talent to develop, hard as he might try.

"Zeus" Wilczewski and Frank Hussey will be missed the most tomorrow afternoon. Wilczewski quit school at the mid-year, while Hussey failed to return at the beginning of the first semester. Ryder claims that "Zeus" is one of the best collegiate trackmen in the country.

DEPEND ON ROOKIES

Boston College will send two rookies, Kamesh and Tripoli, after the pair of Holy Cross flashes in the 100, while Woodworth will pit them out in the furiong. They are not expected to upset either Quinn or Daley, but may pick up a few points in third place.

The quarter-mile should be the feature race of the day. Holy Cross has its entire mile relay team on the entry list, while B. C. offers two good quarter-milers in Woodworth and Mulcahy. Holy Cross' men are Chenis, Durkin, Mahar and Klamkash.

Captain Daley of Boston College should win the half-mile. He will get some competition from Brendan, Murphy, Sullivan, Steppacher, Kelly and Hassett, all of whom Coach Bart Sullivan has entered. Walter Rogers will also represent B. C. in the half-mile.

Harkins, O'Brien and Orpen of Boston College should make a merry battle in the two-mile run, with Casson, Fitzpatrick, Hickey, Gallant and Steppacher of the Purple.

MILE THE BEST EVENT

Brennan is Holy Cross' ace in the mile. Boston College has McLaughlin, Joyce and Barrett. This mile race should be one of the best of the afternoon. Boston College has three fast steppers, while Brennan of the Purple is good for a mile under 4:35.

In the hurdles Holy Cross is conceded the first two places. Capt. McDonald should win both the 120 and 220-yards timber topping events. Costello, a Jamaica Plain boy, will be right at his captain's heels.

Owen Dooley, Ray Connolly and John Sullivan will give these boys a fight over the flights. Dooley is a good hurdler, although not in the class with the Holy Cross pair. John Sullivan, a quarter-miler ordinarily, has been groomed for the hurdles by Coach Ryder.

Capt. McDonald, and possibly Quinn or Daley, loom as the only double first place winners of the meet. McDonald is favorite to win both hurdles and the high jump.

Rex Reach, a companion of Wilczewski, will try to keep B. C. in the meet by cleaning up a number of points in the field events. Coach Ryder is relying heavily upon Reach who is entered in the shot, high jump, discus and hammer.

Leo Muldoon is another promising Eagle field event man. Muldoon is entered in the javelin, discus and shot. Mike Durgee is an Eagle hammer thrower who may win a few points. Mike has been doing well since the football season with the weights.

Pete Bove in the shotput and discus is a strong Holy Cross man. Sweeney is another favorite to place in both these weight events. Amero and Chenis are good pole vaulters from Worcester.

Heavyweights Enter St. Joe's Tournament

With many of the amateurs that starred in the recent huge tournaments expected to participate, the weekly show of the St. Joseph's T. A. B. at Commercial Hall, Bowdoin sq., is expected to be one of the largest of the season next Saturday night.

Entries are flocking in for all of the seven open classes on the card, which include the 112, 118, 126, 135, 147, 158 and heavyweights.

NEW DEDHAM COACH

RESOURCEFUL AND CLEVER

Jack Heaphy, former Boston College sensational center, should prove a capable football coach at Dedham high school.

Jack Heaphy Makes Ideal School Coach

Dr. M. E. Grant, chairman of the Dedham school directing board, has announced that Dedham high has secured the services of Jack Heaphy, former Boston College football star and later a coach at that institution, for athletic director of the Dedham high school.

Jack Heaphy is well known around Boston. He attended the South grammar school in Beverly, and later the Beverly high school, graduating from that school in 1917. He then went to Georgetown, remaining with the Hilltoppers that year and 1918.

In 1919 he came to Boston College and was a member of the football team which played Harvard that fall. Though his eleven lost the game, his work was one of the outstanding features of the contest, and instantly won him recognition, as an All-American center and he was a member of a majority of the mythical "All" teams at the conclusion of the season.

GREAT B. C. CENTER

In 1920 Jack played the greatest game of his career as roving center, and was the pivot cog on the club, which trounced Yale and won the championship of the east by going through the season without a defeat listed against it. During the fall of 1921 he was not free to play football, but he came back in the next season and as good enough to be mentioned for the third team as All-America center.

He graduated with the degree of Bachelor of Philosophy in 1923, and the following year went to B. C. high as coach and teacher of mathematics. His work there was so good that he was selected as line and center coach last fall at Boston College to assist Leo Daley.

At Dedham he is to be assisted by Bill Sutherland, sub-master in the schools of that town.

On the baseball card there is the Everett high game at the acme of the Eagles, and Cambridge Latin receiving Boston Latin, as the most important matches of the day.

There are some good contests slated for the morrow, with Boston English playing at Jamaica Plain in what promises to be a first-class contest. Boston Trade crosses bats with B. C. high, and Chelsea goes to Brainiac. Belmont Hill school plays at Roxbury Latin, while Belmont high goes to Milton high.

Mechanics at East Boston is expected to furnish a good many thrills, for the city lights have a lot of rivalry packed in all their contests. Hudson plays at Lexington and Stoneham at Wilmington. Wellesley goes to Noble and Greenough, Mansfield to Franklin, and Brewster to Yarmouth on the Cape, as well as Harwich at Dennis.

Three tennis matches appear on tomorrow's list, English going to Medford, Malden to St. John's Prep, and Rivers school at Browne and Nichols.

Trot play win of Medford over Malden was some what of a surprise to the many fans yesterday, for a closer contest was expected, but it soon was that the Blue and White is looking a lot of strength, and that Coach Roberts' boys will prove troublesome to a lot of the supposedly stronger suburban teams before the season closes.

B. U. Tennis Team to Play New Hampshire

Boston University's annual field day will be held at Riverside today as part of Junior Week program. The tennis match against the University of New Hampshire will be one of the main events, though there will be awarded to the winner of each event and the highest point scorer in the four events will be given an extra prize.

Track will also play a large part in the program. There will be events for the male and female students. Varsity men will be restricted to one event. In addition to this meet there will be annual schoolboy triathlon.

There will also be swimming races, informal tennis matches and boating.

By BOBBY JONES

National Open, British Open and Southern Open Champion.

SPRINGTIME is the season for the golfer to form good habits to help him in the summer's play. The next few weeks should be spent in polishing up a rusty game and in removing the kinks which show up after the winter layoff.

It is, of course, folly to expect or even to hope to play your best game from the very start, and it is far better to let the touch come back, as it will after sufficient play and practice, than to try to force your game along at a more rapid pace than it can stand.

When I find myself out of practice and, on the touch of my clubs with a feeling of strangeness, I can usually get along best by playing along easily and comfortably, never trying for too much length nor essaying any especially difficult shots. If I begin to lay my swing with too much effort before it has become grooved in the proper arc, it only makes the grooving more difficult and often brings up complications I should not otherwise have encountered.

WALTER HAGEN is noted for his ability to score well when he is not just at top form. I have seen him score in the very low seventies when in the course of the round I had actually been so foolish as to be sorry for him.

Walter's ideas in this connection are of considerable interest. He says that he never attempts to force his game for the same reason that a poker player never tries to force his luck. He simply plays along as best he can with what shots he has in hand.

If he finds that he is hooking with his wood clubs, instead of attempting to correct it, he allows for it, and he makes no effort to use an iron club in which he has not confidence.

Walter figures that his game must come back to him sometime, and until it does he must be patient. When he has regained his touch in the time to do a little forcing. I am sure all beginners can profit by the example of Hagen, and take things slowly and comfortably until they begin to acquire some degree of skill with their clubs.

A few days ago Watts Gunn and I played a match in Augusta against Alfred Bourne and Howard Forston. Young Forston is himself an excellent example of what I mean. I first knew him about 1920, when he and I were students at Georgia Tech and members of the same fraternity.

At that time he had never played golf. In fact, he has now been playing only four years. He plays consistently in the low and middle seventies and has an easy and graceful a style as one would care to see. His golfing development has been extraordinarily rapid.

MAKING allowance for the fact that he must have possessed a natural aptitude for the game, I think it is safe to say that the real secret of his success lies in the way he has gone about it, under competent instruction from Dave Ogilvie. He has had ample time for play and practice, but, above all, he has realized from the start that it is better to hit the ball easily and truly than hard and not so well.

Even now, when he has gained a fine control with every club, his swing is apparently effortless.

That, I believe, is the aim every golfer should have as he begins to limber up for the coming season. He should make a resolution that he will never swing so fast nor so hard that he will throw himself off bal-

Style Authority

BARTLEY & SONS, London Bootmakers for more than a hundred years, have actually made shoes for the present Prince of Wales, his father, the present King of England, and his grandfather, King Edward, and other members of the Royal Family, past and present. That's why I went direct to Bartley.

I paid three pounds, four shillings and twopence ($15.65) for this shoe in London and we have reproduced it in our factory for $6.60. Bartley's original shoe is now on display in 72 Regal windows, and the Regal Reproduction is now on sale in 72 Regal Stores from Coast to Coast.

Bartley describes this shoe as a Box Calf Oxonian with "Punched and Notched" Toe Cap and a "Middling Substance" Oak Bark Tanned Sole. This simply means it's a Black Calf Oxford with a Tan Bark Medium Weight sole, which is just what we are using in the Regal Reproduction. The lasts are identical in measurement and appearance and the design is the same.

But let me tell you a difference you can't see when you compare the two shoes. Bartley is using practically the same methods today as he did when he was making shoes for Queen Victoria— only four men handle the shoe from the time it is cut until it is finished. In our factory about one hundred and fifty different persons perform some operation on a Regal Shoe. BARTLEY AVERAGES THREE PAIRS A DAY—WE MAKE ABOUT THREE THOUSAND A DAY.

Martha Lee Gives Tips on Tinned Meat

THE question of whether canned foods play an important part in the American diet must be answered in the affirmative. The mother of today is the emancipated homemaker. The woman whose job is not all housekeeping but homemaking and the line of distinction is very broad.

Martha Lee

You all know women who are housekeepers but are they homemakers? They spend their day cleaning, scrubbing, canning and cooking, and in the evening when the family returns home, she places before them an elaborate meal, but she is too tired to dress, therefore enters the dining room in her working clothes and a meal deliciously cooked remains untouched on her plate because she is physically and mentally fatigued.

Of course, there are some dishes that only the homemaker can prepare, but canned foods can be prepared more efficiently, more attractively and more economically in the large white canning kitchens of the commercial producers. This is true in particular of canned meats. Canned meats have unfortunately not played as important a part in our diet, due in part to misinformation and to lack of suggestions for uses.

Every well established household has an emergency shelf and canned meats to me are primarily emergency foods. Other canned foods should be on this emergency shelf—canned vegetables and fruits—but this article is to be devoted to canned meats because I believe you are interested in these foods and want to know more about them.

The variety of canned meat is great. The type of meat entering into these cans is the same wholesome meat that you purchase from your retail market. The meats, spices, vegetables and other ingredients have all been passed upon by the U. S. Government who permits the government stamp being placed on the label only after the meat has passed the various inspections and its wholesomeness is assured.

Canned meats come in various sizes, usually No. 1 and No. 2 cans. The No. 1 weighs about 12 ounces while the No. 2 can weighs about 1¼ pounds. There are of course smaller cans such as No. ¼ used for potted meats and deviled meats, so attractive for sandwich filling, adding flavor to otherwise bland foods and used for stuffing vegetables and eggs.

Then we have the meat loaves so excellent for cold lunches, picnics, and automobile trips. These are just the shape of a small loaf and are put up in a ¾ size can. There are three distinct types of meat loaves, each delicious—the loaf, beef, and ham, and may be served either hot or cold—with or without a sauce or gravy.

During the spring and summer months when cooking has lost much of its savor, canned meats are a gift from heaven. An unexpected guest or two need not cause confusion in the household having a well stocked emergency shelf. Corned beef hash is a good old American dish that will ever lose its popularity. It may be purchased in No. 1 or No. 2 sized cans.

Heated in the can or browned in the skillet, garnished with vegetables or chopped eggs, a real treat is the result. Chili con carne, the very popular Mexican dish, is often served after a bridge party or as a hurry-up bite. The very best chili con carne comes in Nos. ½, 1, and 2 size tins.

Some other old friends of every family are baked beans, either with or without tomato sauce, and canned spaghetti with its rich cheese dressing.

After years of research on the nutritional value of meats, scientists have found that the meat organs, including tongue are rich in vitality-giving elements. Tongue is a very tasty meat, especially popular during the warm weather when the appetite needs whetting.

Faithfully yours,
MARTHA LEE.

Orgies of Organdies seem to be indulged in by the designers who find this crisp material so effective a trimming for silk frocks. Both plain and printed taffeta afternoon dresses have cuff and collar treatments of organdie, while many of the most charming taffeta evening gowns feature attractive appliques of organdie.

OH, THESE WOMEN!

By Leola Allard

TWO girls stood in front of the Ritz Carlton in New York, watching for the fliers to come out.

"Where have they been?" asked one.

"What do you mean, 'where have they been'" said the other showing some surprise.

"Well, where do they come from?"

"From Washington."

"What did they go there for?"

"Why for the funeral, of course."

"Oh, yes," said the first girl, looking relieved, "I know, to the funeral. Bremen died, didn't he?"

There is no such thing as age any more among women.

Five successful business women at dinner had a discussion as to what is the happiest life for women—business or home life. They agreed that the happiest women are those with husbands and children to care for. The chief complaint of home women, they agreed, is the lack of praise. Men take home life and all its detail work for granted, while they constantly praise women in business who do things well.

Dr. Reed on Habits of Infants

By CHAS A. L. REED, M. D., Former President of the American Medical Association.

YOUR child, in all probability, will go through a bed-wetting period even after it has escaped from diapers. But few children escape this experience, which always is perplexing to parents.

Incontinence of urine, by night and sometimes by day, when not caused by some local irritation, is a system of the hypersensitive and nervous child. On the other hand, the local irritation may make the child nervous. The infirmity is absolutely abhorrent to the child it often hangs like a cloud over his whole life. He is unable to hold his water, not because he does not care but because he cares too much. Doubtless backward children, and children of low mentality generally, are difficult to train in habits of cleanliness, but their failure to this respect is then in keeping with and does not contrast with the general level of their intelligence and achievement.

In "nervous" incontinence, the general level of the child is often high. His esthetic sense is to highly developed. The accident distresses him unduly. He cannot drive it from his thoughts. He fears and dismally anticipates its recurrence. No doubt many children compensate by assuming an attitude of ostentatious unconcern, which may deceive those who do not know the child or who have little understanding of children. No doubt, too, there are times when he forgets his trouble. But the thought is always in his background that extends far back in the infancy.

It is then that we see this sensitive, suggestible child, paling, flushing, perhaps stammering. He shows himself easily cowed by reproof, unable to stand up against criticism and greatly upset by any situation in which he finds himself conspicuous or ridiculous. He constantly feels he has done the wrong thing. If we go carefully and sympathetically into these cases we find the shocked, grieved face of the mother or nurse uttering words of reproof or expressing disgust at this infantile defilement. It is this senseless criticism that often destroys the self confidence, the self-respect, the aplomb of the child for life.

With the majority of children all expressions of distress and disgust are successful in curing them of dirty habits. It is for this reason that, with the child badly predisposed to "nervousness," the "management" generally lays too great stress on the occasional accident. The same "management" generally lays too little stress upon every improvement manifested and the growing control of the functions.

This leads directly to the development or perpetuation of the disorder, which may persist until the growth of personality and self-confidence ultimately bring freedom from the grip of childish fears and obsessions.

"You Said It, Marceline!"

By MARCELINE D'ALROY

SOME girls are beautiful in COTTON. Others are blah in SILK.

To some girls LIFE looks rather like a cotton nightgown. A fairly commonplace affair. Some manage to DOLL it up with a few yards of lace, run a RIBBON through it, and eventually make quite an ATTRACTIVE thing of it.

These women are GENIUSES. For what they will do with a COTTON garment, they will do with a COMMONPLACE man. Doll him up, make the BEST of him, and feel proud because they have had some part in the making of him. If he remains TRUE, they are satisfied. Women like this have MOTHER HEARTS, and their lives are always full.

To some girls LIFE appears to represent a FLIMSY step-in. A dainty piece of LUXURY. They do not expect either to BUY it or pay for it—they merely expect it to ADORN and flatter them.

When young and beautiful these girls often appear very SEDUCTIVE. And although they are but PASTE many get placed on VELVET.

All of them are SELFISH. On the hard stretches of life, they are merely a MIRAGE. Still—many a man has MARRIED his mirage.

Selfish women ATTRACT men for the moment. Then many an unselfish man has to keep them for a lifetime on account of that MOMENT. Sometimes UNSELFISH girls lose the men they LOVE, while selfish ones will hold their man indefinitely. (Sometimes against his will.) It is always an INDIVIDUAL proposition.

The French say that there is always one who KISSES, and one who OFFERS the cheek. One who LOVES, and one who allows LOVE for it is rare that any two people are really other in exactly the same MEASURE.

Usually it is better if the WOMAN loves the more. For this keeps her BUSY and occupied—always and ceaselessly ADORED bores most women to tears.

And speaking of silk and cotton what a woman WEARS is not deeply IMPORTANT. What is important is that the heart beneath is WARM and tender, and the woman comfortable and happy INSIDE.

TRADER HORN

BY ALFRED ALOYSIUS HORN

Edited by ETHELREDA LEWIS

Adventure and Romance Amid Scenes of Almost Barbaric Splendor

CHAPTER 15.

THE meeting dispersed still laughing and joking at the dead witch doctor's expense. The Mpangwe village was crowded with ivory hunters, as there was an elephant drive about to take place. The animals were about 25 miles away and were being lured into an enclosure several miles in circumference.

Once in the enclosure the trapped animals have no chance of escape, as the hunters in force close round the place and form a ring which is seldom broken. About 150 animals composed this herd, which were looking for fresh pastures, and these migrations took place yearly and alwa s in the dry season.

Had they not been interfered with this bunch were heading for the southern shores of Lake Aleou, Bu the Mponagwya, always on the qui vive, generally get them before they arrive at the promised land. In these migrations the hunters say the young elephants are led by the old bulls who have made the trip before. No one but the drivers ever see near the enclosure.

The animals are coaxed into the enclosure by food being placed at intervals all the way to the trap. Their food consists of wild dioscoi small red bananas, odika nuts, palm nuts, banana leaves and a variety of choice foods loved by the elephants.

These foods are also distributed in the enclosure and help to keep the animals quiet without this they would easily break through the enclosure, which is very weak in places and makes one wonder why they do not break through.

The food must have a very quieting effect on them. I left the village the next morning with orders that as soon as the elephants were trapped I should be warned as I wanted to see the actual capture and the killing.

Herr Shiffe was more than glad to see me and we spent most of our time that day and part of the night in making plans for future trade, for our mutual benefit. As the trade in ivory, rubber, etc., was increasing by leaps and bounds it try was absolutely ruinous for both firms.

United we could have done better but being two opposites the best we could do was to have a plain understanding as to our modus operandi in the outdoor trade. It was I that first broached the subject and Herr Shiffe announced or gave his reason why not.

Mutual help in distress was one of the main subjects and also no encroachment on each other's territory. To this we both agreed most whilst I and Herr Shiffe were in the interior the agreement was never broken and furthermore we fought for each other up the river and were twice as powerful as we would have been working at loose heads.

As time went on it became an established fact that our private agreement had saved many lives and made trade possible in places where otherwise we should never have been able to hold our own singly.

I turned in and slept soundly that night and was awakened early next morning by Matam the hunter that the elephants were in the enclosure.

I made all haste and after breakfast took an early departure to witness the fun. Herr Shiffe gave Matam an order for a young elephant to be delivered at his trading post and this was afterward delivered.

Young African elephants are difficult to sell as they never become properly tamed but Herr Shiffe wanted one for a friend in Germany. On arriving at the trap or enclosure we found the hunters around the enclosure.

Small fires were burning at intervals in a huge circle from which rose a dense smoke, whilst some of the native spearmen walked to and fro near the circle. The elephants were leisurely walking around the trap whilst many of them were eating the food that was placed there for them.

After a short while two large tuskers came well in short range. Matam's gun rang out and down fell one elephant whilst I got the other, whilst a large grown cow charged a small piece of our fort which had been enclosed and with such force that she nearly succeeded in forcing an entrance, but she was soon dispatched.

It was some time before the big ones came our way whilst firing had now opened in several places. We killed quite a great number in this manner but all the larger game seemed to be giving the most trouble about the entrance to the enclosure.

Great caution is necessary as the animals were now on the alert and would charge anything moving inside the trap. We had the good fortune to see one large elephant break through the side of your blood brother. My blood brother was Matam, who stood next me in line.

This simple ceremony over, I watched a cannibal dance that beggars description, loud shouting and cries of Anjuna I timba rent the air, guns were fired in volleys in great time and roll like well-drilled musketry fire, whilst spear dancers painted all colours and shades kept time to a band of savages whose only music was a reed placed in the nostril. This sounded weird in the extreme.

After this I parted with a guard of spearmen drawn in two lines as far as my canoe, whilst my departure was heralded by crys of "Best contented Brother of the Fans!"

On arriving at Adinango I received news that Count Debrazan would be with us when the waters of the Ogowe had risen as he intended to visit the interior, which he did later and formed what is now known as the "French Congo" with its interior capital of Brazzaville situated opposite Stanley-pool. So that between Stanley and Debrazza they had taken in a country bigger than Germany and Austria with Italy or no trouble from outside European powers.

Here the "cold blister" pauses to make a few pithy observations to his editress:

"How do you like it Ma'm? I'm too old for boasting and it's no fancy of mine that people like to read about facts that have lain undisturbed by the pen of man.

"That witch doctor's death provides a comical episode. 'Twas that feller poisoned George T——.

"Aye, that poor feller was only ill for a day, his boy told me, dead before midnight. Then the witch doctor took his master's wife away with him, he said. I told you George T—— had married an octoroon from Princess Island. A lovely woman, old John D—— told me.

She sent down the three flights of steps to the front door with him. After he had said goodby and was stepping to his machine, he turned and came back. He took her hands in his—which can be very tender when he chooses—and said gently, "All there? Oh, Saxon, they can't ALL be there."

"Except blue-prints and a color sketch or two."

"And you can make those up? You can do all that in one day? And send them all tomorrow?

"Then I'll go wash my face and lift the spiders, which are biting from my shoes."

She began to laugh — a giddy childlike laugh that she couldn't stop and that brought shiny tears to her eyes. She jumped to her feet: "My Lord, I'm starved! If you've got the strength, go out and scramble up some dinner—eggs or anything."

She came running back as she washed her hands, trailing a flutter of suds across the floor. "It was luck, Saxon—sheer fool's luck and a lazy bum!" God bless the Hat for putting the fear of hell into one Mary Pennings darky butler!

They sat at the table over a lofty omelette Saxon cooked. He was excited—almost unnerved. He clasped his hands to hide their shaking.

"You took a frightful chance—Jerry."

"It was a rat that nearly defeated me. Blitting up there with his pink pink toes curled up. And he brothers and sisters scampering through the woodpile. But I thought of Tennyson making friends of beast and worms. So I went gingerly crawling back . . .

"And I thought of you in the rain. And I thought of Glory."

They sat there adoring each other, exulting in each other. Love in their emotion and unconsciously of it.

"Will you have to work the whole long night, Saxon?"

"Who cares!"

"Saxon, can you get the money and pay Mary Penning back? Let her have no claim in this blessed dream of yours."

"Can you get it?"

"Yes—from Paul. He's had a phenomenal year."

"You won't leave the place from four eight again?"

"Heaven, no!" . . . Long silence . . .

This was the saxon of her happiest dream.

They had stolen sweet hours when he phoned and begged her to stay in town, she'd . . . I'm . . . I'm . . . where I'd . . . that . . . I'm . . . I'm . . . I'm

THE MEDITATIONS OF A WIFE

By HELEN ROWLAND

IN love, a man's winning card is audacity—a woman's tenacity.

A man's greatest inspiration in life is always the thing he wants and HASN'T got. The girl he didn't marry, the kiss he didn't get, the woman he has not yet won. It is hope, not gratitude, that fires his ambition and puts him on his mettle.

* * *

One of the greatest feats of the modern woman is her ability to look very much over-dressed, when she is only half-clothed.

* * *

Sex attraction is not enough to marry on. Infatuation scarcely lasts beyond the honeymoon. It takes a lot of "Grade A," certified LOVE, to spread out over all the years and run into Eternity!

* * *

All this talk about "companionate marriage" did not start until after the bride stopped putting a gold thimble and a cook book into her hope chest and substituted a can opener and a cocktail shaker.

* * *

Men wouldn't be so strong for self-expression, if they realized how often even a loving wife has to suppress a momentary impulse to throw things at her husband.

* * *

Woman loves to captivate, man to subjugate; but the real art consists in never letting a man know that he is a captive or a woman suspect that she is a subject.

The only lasting marriages are those in which the bride goes right on to the last breath telling the world that she has drawn the one prize-winning husband on earth, and the husband goes right on believing that she means it.

* * *

Every city has a home for the feebleminded—but most of them seem to prefer the night clubs.

* * *

Marriage is what changes a woman's "I love you so!" into "I told you so!"

HAVE COLOR IN CHEEKS

If your skin is yellow—complexion pallid—tongue coated—appetite poor—you have a bad taste in your mouth—a lazy, no good feeling—you should take Olive Tablets.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—a substitute for calomel—were prepared by Dr. Edwards after 20 years of study.

Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound mixed with olive oil. Know them by their olive color.

To have a clear, pink skin, bright eyes, no pimples, a feeling of buoyancy like childhood days you must get at the cause.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets act on the liver and bowels like calomel—but have no dangerous after effects.

They start the bile and overcome constipation. Take nightly and note the pleasing results. Millions of boxes sold for 15c, 30c, 60c. All Druggists.

CUTICURA HEALS HARD PIMPLES

Broke Out On Face, Lasted Three Years.

"My trouble began with pimples which broke out on my face. They were hard and red but not very large. They kept spreading until they were almost all over my face. Later blackheads formed which made my face look worse than ever. The trouble lasted about three years.

"I read an advertisement for Cuticura Soap and Ointment and sent for a free sample. I purchased more, and after using five cakes of Cuticura Soap and three boxes of Cuticura Ointment I was completely healed." (Signed) Miss Albina Nauyckas, R. 2, Box 24, Watertown, Conn., June 8, 1927.

Rely on Cuticura Soap and Ointment to keep your skin clear.

Soap 25c. Ointment 25 and 50c. Talcum 25c. Sold everywhere. Sample each, free. Address: Cuticura Laboratories, Dept. R, Malden, Mass. Cuticura Shaving Stick 25c.

FAMOUS LAST WORDS

Reduce the Acid

In sick stomachs—instantly

Sick stomachs, sour stomachs and indigestion usually mean excess acid. The stomach nerves are overstimulated. Too much acid makes the stomach and intestines sour.

Alkali kills acid instantly. The best form is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia, because one harmless, tasteless dose neutralizes many times its volume in acid. Since its invention, 50 years ago, it has remained the standard with physicians everywhere.

Take a spoonful in water and your unhappy condition will probably end in five minutes. Then you will always know what to do. Crude and harmful methods will never appeal to you. Go prove this for your own sake. It may save a great many disagreeable hours.

Be sure to get the genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia prescribed by physicians for 50 years in correcting excessive acids. 25c and 50c a bottle—any druggist.

"Milk of Magnesia" has been the U. S. Registered Trade Mark of The Charles H. Phillips Chemical Company and its predecessor Charles H. Phillips since 1875.

MOTHERS ASKED TO HELP DRIVE FOR SAFETY

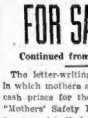
The letter-writing contest feature, in which mothers are to be awarded cash prizes for the best set of ten "Mothers' Safety Don'ts" is advantageous in that it gives every mother a chance actively to take part in the drive and thereby become a part of it.



Capt. George A. Parker

Such a movement, naturally has the hearty approval of every one in my position who is closely allied with promotion of safety on the highways.

Last year in the United States, 23,000 persons were killed and 700,000 injured by automobiles. This is almost as many people as now live in the city of Boston.

About one-third of those killed and injured were children; in other words, 240,000 boys and girls died or suffered serious injury in motor accidents last year.

In Massachusetts alone last year 179 children were killed in automobile accidents—153 being boys and 66 girls. Besides those who lost their lives, there were 8091 children injured—5979 boys and 2623 girls.

It is obvious that anyone, and above all any mother, cannot read these sad figures and not feel that because of this terrific loss and the grief and anguish resulting, that some definite and concerted action on the part of the mothers of New England should be taken, so that thousands of our boys and girls can be safeguarded from the dangers of the highways.

It is important that these mothers adopt strenuous methods to arouse public opinion and that in practice such preventive measures as will be sure to protect their children.

There is no more effective way in which to do this than to instruct their children with constant patience that there are certain dangerous things which they must avoid, and when they are on streets or highways traversed by automobiles.

I feel confident that the letter-writing contest for the mothers of New England will bring out and emphasize what these rules should be.

A FEW SUGGESTIONS

I take the liberty to offer a few suggestions which mothers might bear in mind in safeguarding their children.

For instance the risks involved ought carefully to be considered before parents supply their little ones with scooters, coasting carts, roller skates, bicycles, hand sleds and similar play things.

Even rubber balls and baseballs should not be given to children without special words of caution as to where they must be used in their own safety. A very common cause of motor fatalities among smaller boys is their natural enthusiasm to chase and retrieve a ball which has rolled into the street.

"Spoiling rides" is another constant danger that children should be warned against—riding on the back of trucks or on the running boards of automobiles.

The traffic officer on the street corner is the best friend of the children. Parents should impress upon their children that the police officer is their friend and not their enemy and that his signals and instructions are given for their benefit and safety and for no other reason.

I make these general suggestions with the hope that they may assist mothers in this matter, regardless of your contests.

One of the most difficult features of child fatalities and injury on the highway is that the majority of victims are children under five years, or approximately that age.

So far as the child is concerned this is a phase that can be best handled by the mother.

This is distinctly a home problem and must be dealt with in the home.

DUTY OF EVERYBODY

The Boston Evening American is to be highly commended for conducting such a campaign. Drive for the protection of the children of New England. It will unquestionably be of public service, and, if as a result, our children receive more protection, the Commonwealth and New England as a whole will benefit greatly.

It is my opinion that accidents to children are needless and can be stopped, provided everyone takes an active interest in the problem and the motorists, as well as the parent, appreciates the responsibilities resting on him or her. As an individual, the careless immature children who cannot be expected to have the judgment, knowledge and experience of a grown person.

It is the duty of everyone, whether or not a public official, police officer or citizen, or mother or father, to support and assist any movement which is being carried forward for the protection of our little ones.

It is my sincere hope that your newspaper will receive the assistance of the fair sex in solving this problem and that as a result of their concerted action, we can show this year a substantial decrease in injuries and deaths among children.

It is, of course, the hope of this department of the State government, that ultimately there will be no children injured because of the careless or reckless operation of motor vehicles.

TRAFFIC TIED UP BY BROOKLINE BLAZE

Fire swept through the Union building, High st., Brookline, today, doing $10,000 damage. The fire started in the spraying room of the Stanwood-Hillson Corp. Cars on Boylston st. were tied up an hour during the fire.

Prizes Offered for 10 Safety Don'ts

The Boston Evening American is offering 78 cash prizes for the most effective sets of ten "Mothers' Safety Don'ts" to guard children from the auto peril.

The first prize will be $50, second $15, third $10 and there will be 75 one dollar prizes.

Awards will be made on common sense, practical views, rather than for literary effort.

The judges are Mrs. Alvan T. Fuller, wife of the governor; Capt. George A. Parker, registrar of motor vehicles, Police Commissioner Herbert A. Wilson and Assistant Superintendent Augustus L. Rafter of the Boston public schools.

Kindly write your "Don'ts" on a separate sheet, using one side of the paper. In your letter state number of children and ages. Write legibly and include name and address. Direct letters to Editor Mothers' Safety Don'ts, Boston Evening American, Boston, Mass.

Write early. Remember the contest is already under way.

THOUSANDS ARE BUTCHERED IN CHINA

would be hung from walls or placed on sticks in the roads as a warning to others.

VICTIMS WERE DOPED

It always seemed to me that the victims were doped. They never raised an outcry as death approached them, and even when the executioner swung and clipped off only a small piece of the head they did not cry out, though they were still conscious.

These killings, I know, took place in Tien-Tsen, and I have photos of similar killings in Shanghai, Pekin and other northern cities of China.

Horrible tortures were also inflicted, and the men were still alive when the final deed, the cutting of the head by the executioner, was performed.

Very few of those who were killed were women or children. In nearly all cases they were men. I should say that there were about 200 women killed in the thousands that I have mentioned.

Occasionally, if the man to be executed was, for some had been prominent, in military circles, the killing was more private and easier for the victim. The public would not be allowed to view it. It would take place in a room, and a soldier would place a pistol to the head of the victim.

ARMIES WELL EQUIPPED

The Chinese armies were pretty nearly as well equipped as the battalions that represented the other nations of the world. Frequently there would be American drill masters and soldiers in charge of large numbers of Chinese soldiers.

The Northern army had 12 brand new airplanes of German make, to my knowledge. They also used Thompson machine guns, just like ours. We had one to every squad and so did they. These guns fire about 500 shots per minute and the shot spreads where it hits.

Their airplanes were of the newest type and their pilots were trained, though I don't know what nation was accountable for the training of the aviators. There was little danger of the planes becoming disabled without repair. When they came from Germany, plenty of parts and equipment came with them from the way that the Chinese spoke.

TO HEAR NORTH STATION ROW

Issuing a restraining order preventing the Boston & Maine from interfering with the Armstrong Company in the performance of a contract, Justice Sanderson of the Superior Court today appointed former Judge Frederic H. Chase as a master, and hearings begin May 21.

The contract between the Armstrong Company and the Boston & Maine, which is the subject of controversy, became effective January 1 1921, and expires April 1, 1931. Under it the Armstrong Company has maintained a restaurant in the old North Station, and has also operated lunchrooms, newsstands and restaurants on the lines of the railroad.

F. S. BLODGETT DEAD AT WEST NEWTON HOME

Frederick S. Blodgett, identified with Boston wholesale dry goods interests for many years, died today at his home, 258 Prince st., West Newton. He was formerly a member of the firm of Blodgett, Ordway & Webber and of its predecessor, Ordway, Blodgett & Co.

He was a prominent Mason and a member of the Brae-Burn Country Club and of the Boston City Club and the widow and two sons survive him.

Feeley Given Ten Years

Chief Justice Hall of the Superior Court today sentenced Charles W. Feeley to from 10 to 16 years in state prison on his plea of guilty to highway robbery.

RESEARCH SEEN AS BIG FACTOR IN BUSINESS

No modern business can hope to garner unfailing profits in plans are based on facts, A. Lincoln Filene, chairman of the New England Council's research committee, told business men attending the First Research-in-Industry Conference today. The Conference, under the auspices of the research committee, was held at the Hotel Statler.

Mr. Filene said only those industries and those managements who study their problems scientifically will stand among survivors in the strenuous business years ahead.

"The textile industry now has its Textile Institute, and is beginning to see the light of research and cooperation," he added. "In Manchester, England, the Cotton Research Association, which embraces 95 per cent of the cotton industry there, employs 37 scientists and has an annual appropriation available for research of approximately a quarter of a million dollars.

IMAGINATION NECESSARY.

"These are the kind of facts which the research committee of the New England Council is trying to make. New England business men must ponder."

Champe S. Andrews, director of sales of the Nilsen Folding Box Co., New Haven, said the modern industrial sales manager is more of a manager of research than he is a manager of sales. He said sales management effects is to increase the distribution of their products are along entirely different lines from those followed a few years ago.

"Increased sales today," said Mr. Andrews, "are largely the result of research and the boys working upon new materials with new processes and new forces, or with new tools, conditions or new desires hitherto inescapable of fulfillment."

He said advertising in general had been slow to respond to this new order of things, but New England industry is coming to use research more and more.

REVOLUTION IN INDUSTRY.

The future prosperity of New England industry depends to a large extent upon the use of chemical research, Frank Curtis of the Merrimac Chemical Company told the conference.

Calling attention to industries that have been revolutionized, and others that are very greatly benefited as a result of the discoveries of industrial chemists, Mr. Curtis asked his audience whether their money is safe "in any industry that is neglecting chemical research."

He said that artificial wool has already been made, that wood alcohol is being produced by a chemical method, and that synthetic hydrocarbon fuels are possible. Gasoline and distillates could be made from coal, the speaker added, declaring that when all the natural oils are gone we will ask the whereabouts from automobiles.

NATIONAL POLICIES OF THE HEARST NEWSPAPERS

1. An agreement of English-speaking peoples to preserve peace among themselves and promote the peace of the world.
2. A constitutional amendment to provide for the election of United States Senators in numbers proportionate to the population of each State, but no State to have less than two Senators. A reapportionment of Congressional representation immediately after every census, or in case of the failure of Congress so to act, to make the apportionment automatic at the end of the first Congressional session, the proportion of population for each representative in each case to be that of the existing Congress.
3. A separate Department of the Army, of the Navy and of the Air Forces, all united under a Secretary of National Defence.
4. Federal action to the limit of Federal Government powers to abolish illiteracy among the people of the United States, and the creation of a Secretary of Education.
5. Necessary measures to secure the election of Congress in November and its installation on the 1st of January following, and the inauguration of a President on the 1st of January immediately following his election in November.

The Driver's Seat

In a "Buyer's Market," That's Where the Buyer Sits

Someone said a year or two ago that the industrial difficulties in which our part of the country had found itself were due to the fact that having "waxed fat" in a seller's market, New England was slow to readjust herself to the conditions which prevail in a buyers' market.

The market still belongs to the buyer, whose moods, wants, fancies and predilections are being considered today at the FIRST New England Research Conference, in the Hotel Statler. Hence, we are not surprised to learn from the program that when the hour for open discussion arrives the topic is to be, "Producing in a BUYER'S Market." The program explains:

"The transition from the buyer hammering at the seller's gates for his products to the seller besieging the office of the buyer has wrought vast economic changes in New England's industrial picture. What are the sure methods of surviving the competition which has arisen from the 'buyer's market?'"

Late in the afternoon, again, the president of the American Management Association, Mr. F. L. Sweetser, of Poughkeepsie, N. Y., is to talk on "Management Opportunities." Once more, in an explanatory note, the program makes it clear that today it is the buyer, and NOT the seller, who "gives the orders":

"It has been said that, for the most part, a company progresses in direct ratio to the ability of its management. In the existing 'buyer's market' this particularly holds true. In his dual capacity as a successful business man, and as president of one of the country's most progressive co-operative movements, there can be little doubt as to the value of F. L. Sweetser's message."

Still less can there be doubt of the value of research—diligent, protracted investigation—as applied to commerce and industry.

This conference, under the auspices of the Research Committee of the New England Council, is added proof of the determination with which our corner of the country is tackling its problems.

May we add that we hope these sessions will inspire none of our gifted speakers to rise to his feet at a public meeting within the next week or two, and deny that we're "slipping."

It IS true that in 1926 we lost 207 industries.

But we GAINED 431 new industries.

It IS true that the industries which passed out had given employment to 8,056 persons; there can be no denying the fact.

But the industries which came in provide work for 19,054!

In other words, there is nothing in the present situation to warrant a single blast from the calamity howler.

The New England Council was formed mainly for the purpose of "discovering New England's problems and suggesting the remedies." Nearly 8,000,000 New Englanders are agreed that it has gone about a big job in a most effective way.

Our Calendar

Movement to Make It Simpler Is Gaining Force

The campaign for a simpler calendar is gaining headway. The United States Chamber of Commerce has named a strong committee to report upon its scientific and legal aspects. The Pan-American Conference at Havana recommended that member nations name similar committees so as to be ready for an international conference on the subject. A number of European nations already have such studies in progress.

Large business organizations in the United States are increasingly using the thirteen-month calendar in their own accounting because of its manifest advantages. It permits exact comparison of business activities by months, avoiding the 19 per cent variation in number of days among the months of our twelve-month calendar.

It thus greatly simplifies accounting. And when made legal and universal, it will be to the further advantage of business everywhere by anchoring the now floating holidays and insuring regularity of employment.

There is no argument against it except the difficulty of changing a long fixed habit. If difficulties were allowed to halt progress, mankind would be in a bad way.

Health Day

What Every Day in the Year Should Be

Suppose that, instead of having one National Health Day a year, we had 365, with these arrangements:

A health center in every public school, with clinics where defects of the body would receive as careful attention as we try to give to undeveloped aptitudes of the mind.

Training camps for boys and girls, in which each youth of the nation could learn how to breathe, stand, walk and ride correctly; how to do common tasks in unison; how to practice collective hygiene; how to meet emergency needs with coolness and self-possession; how to play wholesomely; how to obey.

A great extension of public nursing, so that the neediest person when ill or threatened with illness could be aided to speedy health.

It would cost a lot, of course.

But wouldn't it pay?

CONTROL NARCOTIC DRUG AT SOURCE

By DR. FRANK CRANE

I HAVE heard somewhere that a test of insanity patients for their mental soundness is as follows:

The patient is placed in a chamber and water is turned on from a faucet. He is given a mop and pail. If he tries to mop up the water and squeeze it into the pail he is insane, but if he has sense enough to turn off the tap he is sane.

The only way to control narcotic drugs is at the source. You simply have to quit raising an abnormal supply of the materials from which these drugs are made.

Efforts to control the use of narcotics by preventing smuggling and by educating the people not to use them are inefficient.

It is like mopping up the water by an insane patient.

When people got tired of attempting to control the drink evil by the "regulating" of saloons and the liquor traffic, they decided to put a stop to its manufacture and sale. The only thing that interferes with the success of this plan at present is that a large part of the world today continues to manufacture it.

The only argument against state-wide prohibition instead of nation-wide is that there is no way to control the influx of liquor from wet states into the dry ones. The supply has to be cut off before anything can be done about it.

The public health service says that there are 100,000 drug addicts in the United States and about 420,000 ounces of drugs are consumed annually. These are for the most part smuggled through New York, although some get in through the Mexican border. Most of the opium is smuggled through Seattle.

The importer sells to wholesale dealers for as low as $11 an ounce, but the addict is required to pay $457.50 an ounce, which he purchases in one-grain capsules at $1 each.

Whatever the League of Nations is good for or not good for, it ought to function in some way so as to prevent raising opium beyond what is needed for legitimate medical supplies in any part of the world. As long as it is grown anywhere it can be smuggled into this country.

The lure of extravagant gains motivizes the smuggler, just as it furnishes a motive for the bootlegger. The only way to stop these gains effectually is to stop the supply of material.

Let us quit trying to mop up the water which is constantly flowing from the tap and let us turn off the tap.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

I HAVE a picture. A wayside shrine, a small, tiled niche where gentle Mary broods above the Babe within her arms. A film of rain that dashes on the tiles but does not touch the two who rest within.

And there, before the shrine, shivering a little in the thin lash of the rain, a baby satyr—half goat, half boy—gazing with wistful eyes at that sweet mothering.

Two babes, one soft and safe within his mother's arms—the other furred with wildness, lashed with storm, peering with hungry eyes at peace his little life has never known.

That picture hangs upon my office wall. Outside my office window is another scene.

A crowded city street, storm haunted even on the sunniest days, beset with lairs and dens and things that crouch and creep. And out there, in the storm, the young ones of our race, almost as wild and quite as unprotected as that satyr boy.

Our satyr children, what a dangerous trail they tread; what vicious jungle beasts go stalking at their side!

And yet, they're human still—for all their goatish naughtiness they are but babes.

Lost babes with wistful eyes, who peer from out the storm upon an empty shrine and seek a sheltering they've never known.

For modern Mary sits no longer in her shrine.

This restless breed of mothers who won't stay in the shrines, but leave them empty, seeking jungle trails, weaving strange garlands under vagrant moons—how could they've left the place their mothers filled?

And yet, one understands why mothers tired of their shrines.

The long, dull days—the longer anxious nights—the endless staying in the same small groove, the constant sacrifice of their own private selves—the growing old when one has never yet been fully young—putting aside the cup of life before the wine is drained.

It was not easy, for women to stay shrined.

For outside, all day long, the jungle calls. And fireflies, by night, weave nets beneath the stars. And freedom drifts like a hot, sweet scent along the air.

It was not easy for women to stay shrined, serene and patient, chained to some small child.

But babes were not satyrs when their mothers stayed in shrines.

They did not grow hard hoofs to cope with stones, nor furry flanks to match the fox and goat, nor flickering eyes, dark with wisdom of forbidden trails.

New York Day by Day

NEW YORK, May 3—It is the claim of style experts that New York has extremely few well dressed men. London far surpasses the metropolis in the elegance of gentlemen's attire. Hollywood, in proportion to population, is said to be the best dressed American city from a masculine viewpoint.

The theory is advanced that the New Yorker's wardrobe is never complete. The excuse is made he hasn't enough closet space. What the New York dandy wears is up to the fashion standard, but it lacks variety and is rarely complete.

According to best authorities in New York and London, the well dressed man should have 12 business suits, 1 braided frock coat to be worn with striped trousers and silk hat, 2 dinner suits—one double and one single-breasted—and full evening dress.

He should have 5 overcoats, one for sport and one for evening wear, 15 pairs of shoes, three house robes, one dozen pairs of pajamas, 24 day-time shirts, a half-dozen dress shirts, 12 walking sticks, 3 dinner and 3 full-dress vests.

Too, he should have 2 pairs of house slippers, at least 50 neckties for business wear and a half-dozen each of dinner and full dress ties, 4 business hats, a derby, silk and concertina hat, a dozen pairs of gloves, two dozen pairs of socks and 2 sets of shirt studs.

Also 4 pairs of everyday cuff buttons, 3 mufflers, 36 handkerchiefs, 12 suits of underwear.—(I'm beginning to feel naked as a Jay bird)—3 pairs of hose supporters, a day and evening cigarette case and the same thing in imported cigar lighters.

These are essentials—bare necessities, as it were. And, of course, you can add to the ensemble as you please. Nothing is said about an umbrella, so it is supposed a fashionably dressed gentleman is not supposed to go out in the rain. He might not know how to get back.

THE idea that a gentleman must have such a complete wardrobe is all moist. As one who worries the overdraft department spending more than is necessary for habiliments, it seems to me the neatest and best dressed men are those who make scant but careful selections, but know how to wear them. That is an art men with bountiful wardrobes rarely attain.

THERE are a number of men who go abroad on annual shopping sprees to replenish their wardrobe. While most of their clothes are purchased in America, they like to pick up a few tweeds in Saville Row, some scarves in place Vendome, and flashy trinkets along the narrow strip of the rue de la Paix.

EVERY man is more or less "clothes conscious," even if he does not admit it. He has a secret ambition to resemble those nonchalant and natty figures of the magazine clothing ads. And the only man I ever saw in real life to attain this sartorial spender is Adolphe Menjou, the uppity slicker of the screen drawing rooms.

ONE of the millinery designers for a fashionable establishment designed a stark ornament for ladies' hats that made the entire trade clap their hands in glee. Not one was sold. Prospective customers, it was said, looked upon it with superstition or something.

A TAXICAB company is withdrawing half of its fleet of night cabs, which would seem to indicate that nocturnal frolicking is not what it used to be. Or, maybe people just go places but don't go home.

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

By ALINE MICHAELIS

MAN'S ancient writings, hidden through long years,
All undeciphered on the ageless stone,
Reveal their tales of triumphs and of tears
When once their long-lost, long-sought key is known.
Before our eyes the strange procession moves:
The hawk-faced gods, the goddess of the moon,
And Pharaohs come again, with hates and loves
That passed away, as ours will pass, too soon.
Man, too, is like those scarred and timeless stones
Which, mocking, bear a record none may read
To find what gods the spirit there enthrones,
To glimpse the purpose back of dream and deed.
Dim hieroglyphs! Yet would we try aright,
The key of Love would bear them to our sight.
